Dear Boulder County Commissioners,

This is to urge that you extend the county's fracking moratorium for at least five years, or until the present form of fracking is proven harmless to the health of the people living here, the farmers growing food here, and the natural environment.

A resident of Boulder County since 1973, I quickly came to love its scenery, long views, wonderful year round outdoor life, and friendly people—famously, some of the healthiest in the nation.

Now, knowing that fracking may be headed our way if the moratorium is not extended, my husband and I, like several of our neighbors, are considering leaving Boulder County. This would be a wrenching change and a loss not only of the investment in our home but also of many of our friends.

Please extend the moratorium for everyone's health and welfare, and especially for the children.

Thank you,

Phyllis Kaplan

Dear Commissioners Domenico, Gardner and Jones,

Thank you for voting unanimously in June 2013 to extend our fracking moratorium. Like the great majority of residents, I trust that you will again extend it, and do so until fracking can be made safe.

Reasons to extend are many and profound. Indeed, these reasons show that we really need not a moratorium but a ban. (Many communities, of course—including our own Longmont and Lafayette and, most recently, the Texas town of Denton—have chosen a ban.) Unfortunately, a ban is not on today's agenda, so please consider my remarks as arguments for a mere extension.

Since you are already familiar with many of the reasons, I'll list only a few as a reminder to us all: harm to residents' health from multiple toxins (as detailed in your Resolution 2013-55) as well as from noise, light and dust; major studies of harm from toxins, yet to be completed; economic loss to homeowners from devalued homes; economic loss of tourism; damage to, and obstruction of, roads by heavy-truck traffic; and—less tangibly, yet visibly—loss of that clarity of the air that permits us to see the mountains.

Moreover, the economic landscape that has favored fracking is changing. Fracking is called "unconventional" for reasons including its high cost and high break-even price point, about $80 per barrel. World prices presently have dropped below that point and may stay low indefinitely, so fracking is not only highly debt-driven but also financially fragile. Meanwhile, solar and wind energy are steadily cheaper, and energy storage more plentiful. Since the profit from fracking already is marginal, we have the pleasant prospect that, with a little delay, fracking may die peacefully of its own accord. Let us therefore defer its damage, which is permanent, until then.

If it does not die, then the same modest delay—say, at least until 2018, when some major studies of fracking poisons will be finished—may allow this industry to clean itself up.

No one suggests, of course, that corporations do not have property rights. These do not, however, include a right to injure others. Similarly, my wife and I have a right to our money in a bank in Gunbarrel. This, however, does not allow us to withdraw the money at any time we please, for example at midnight, with a shaped explosive charge to blow out the wall of the bank. Do the rights of corporate "persons" exceed those of real persons in this regard? If not, then they must exercise their right accordingly. Do not allow these persons to come to us at midnight.

Sincerely,

Stewart Guthrie

Greetings:

I'm citing language from an email I received from Boulder County regarding the potential oil & gas development within the county, to wit:

“Boulder County is concerned about the potential for significantly expanded oil and gas development within the county, and supports appropriate, tighter restrictions and increased local control to mitigate the impacts of these activities.”

The stated presumption is that the County is willing to allow the public to be harmed, expressing “concern” about the matter and indicating that you support ways to (restrict, control and mitigate) make effects of this expanded oil & gas development less severe, serious or painful.

While fracking is a potentiality, I do object to and do don't consent to the Commissioner's documented inclination to permit public harm. I am asserting that my constitutional rights shall not be violated nor are they open to “appropriate impact.”

I suggest you conduct a deep examination of our federal and state constitutions. You will not find any reference that states the rights of oil & gas development are greater than our rights to life.

My rights, life and health are not up for negotiation nor being 'appropriately impacted upon.'

Sincerely,

Scott Smith

Subject: OIL GAS COMMENTS RE FRACKING
Date: Fri, 7 Nov 2014 12:22:48 -0700

I live on Wasatch Road in NE Boulder County by Coors Barley Grainery. This past summer I let my dogs outside around midnight and noticed a slight hum like sound (similar to the subtle low volume white sound that office buildings in down town Denver pipes into the offices). I noticed at two of the pods about one mile from my house they were fracking and drilling wells. All pods had the tall sound and sight barriers. It was not a windy night. I drove by the two sites and DID NOT notice any smells or noise. When I drove home about .3 mile by the low spot and trees, I could slightly hear the white sound.

This sound is a lot less than the grain trucks driving to the grainery creating dust, and the loud fan sounds that comes from Coors. Definitely a lot quieter than the TRAIN whistle. There are usually four to six trains in a 24-hour day. When the weather is just right and the windows are open, it sounds as if the train is in my yard.

SAFETY

The wells are as safe as your driving into the gas station and filling up your car. At the gas station, many gallons of gas are a few feet below your feet. As long as you don't smoke a cigarette, crash into the pump, or create static electricity, you are safe from the gas.

The wells are drilled approximately one mile (5280' which equals 17-1/2 football fields) under the surface before they do horizontal drilling into the oil/gas formation.. Several steel pipes are set w/special cement that does not leak, approximately 500' BELOW the water table which is usable by humans. Energy companies are drilling separate non potable water wells (also unused irrigation ditches) to use in the drilling and fracking phases. When they are done with the wells, they plug and abandon the water well, or turn it over to the farmer if the farmer wants it. Cattle can drink water that humans can not. Farmers do not drill those deep wells because of the high cost. Farmers utilize about 2/3's the state's potable water for ag. The fracking job contains ONLY 1/2 a percent of chemicals. The chemicals are proprietary (KFC's recipe) but are declared to the Co. Oil and Gas Commission. Commission does an EXCELLENT job of governing and enough regulations for safety and health. EPA has NO evidence of polluted water in the oil fields in the US.

Traffic will be heavier during the drilling and completion. After that, there may be a truck daily or occasionally a couple of trucks doing maintenance or removing liquids. This is less traffic than a factory or office building creates. Also industry creates many middle class jobs that do not always require a college degree. This is GOOD for Boulder County's economy. Let's create those jobs and derive the benefits at the stores, taxes, etc.

SOLUTIONS

Boulder County has three distinct areas - mountain, town of Boulder Area and Longmont east and north of HWY 66. Perhaps to implement some drilling - permit it in the eastern part, particularly north of HWY 66. There already is a pumping oil well 1/2 mile from my house w/emissions equipment in Boulder CO..

If Boulder County does not allow some drilling, the county is faced with mineral owners filing lawsuits which can become costly - i.e. rural subdivisions road maintenance lawsuit Tax payers could also file a lawsuit. Also since Boulder County owns lots of Open Space, there must be some mineral rights owned by the county. If so, the county has the responsibility to all the tax payers to utilize this income resulting in a tax saving and perhaps in the future having the funds without taxing citizens to help homeless people, etc.

One area for Boulder County to work out is the road maintenance. County needs to create a solution with the energy companies. Heavy equipment and traffic are hard on roads. County does a GOOD job on the gravel road by Coors Grainery.

I have lived as a farmer as a kid on an oil lease in KS, worked for 31 years w/major oil company in the Producing Department and for Snyder Oil CO in Evans, CO about 1995. I have seen ALL sides of the industry. IT IS SAFE AND GOOD FOR THE ECONOMY.

Commissioner Domenico,
Now that your re-election has been confirmed, we're looking forward to holding you to your claim that your in favor of extending the moratorium on oil and gas development in Boulder County.

Per the county information, the practice is not safe. New reports come about almost daily about the dangers.

<http://www.bouldercounty.org/doc/landuse/oilgasstaffreport2012.pdf>

Over 1,800 wells can legally be drilled in unincorporated Boulder County. Additional wells will also likely be placed within incorporated towns and cities in the county and may also be serviced using unincorporated county roads. Truck traffic from this activity would increase by many orders of magnitude over current volumes on county roads which are not presently designed to safely accommodate the weight and volume of vehicles associated with oil and gas development. The impacts of the heavy trucks necessary to serve potential oil and gas development on Boulder County roads could be equivalent to the wear and tear of hundreds of millions of passenger vehicles, would increase conflicts with other vehicles and bicyclists, and would place significant new demands for road infrastructure and safety investments on the County, without additional revenue to address the potential needs.

Potential Demand

Relatively little information is currently available regarding forecast demand or plans for drilling in unincorporated Boulder County; however Land Use has completed an initial analysis that indicates over 1,800 wells could be drilled within existing regulatory limits under current state regulations. The consultant team for Douglas County estimated trip generation rates based on an analysis completed by MIT and subsequent adjustments based on local industry interviews. Based on the MIT study, the Douglas County study forecast truck traffic to average 11,040 vehicle trips to develop each pad site (with each pad accommodating six wells) for pad construction, drilling, well installation, and well completion. Once a well is fully operational, trip generation is substantially reduced to approximately 730 vehicle-trips per year (two trips per day). The time period for development of a pad/well site is 45-60 days, with production lasting for up to 15 – 20 years. The timeframe over which these wells could be developed is unknown, and would be largely a function of global oil/natural gas demand.

Based on the assumptions from the Douglas County study and the Land Use Dept. forecast of potential wells (1,800 wells, 6 wells per pad site and 11,040 trips per pad site) over 3,300,000 vehicles trips could use east Boulder County roads to install and service potential oil and gas development. It should also be noted, that this analysis only reflect potential wells in unincorporated Boulder County. Trucks serving wells in the incorporated cities and towns in the County would also likely used Boulder County roads.

Most of the vehicles servicing these wells would be heavy trucks. Heavy trucks have a much greater impact on roads than do lighter weight passenger vehicles, and therefore cause more wear and damage than do passenger vehicles. According to the Douglas County study, the load impact of oil and gas trucks on roads can be in the range of 5,000 to 30,000 times (depending on the weight and number of axles on each vehicle) greater than a passenger car. In sum, the impacts of oil and gas development on Boulder County roads could be equivalent to the wear and tear of many millions of passenger vehicles.

Extend the moratorium.

I first moved to Boulder County in 1988. I love the county and the city. I am very concerned about fracking that is proposed to take place here. It will not only affect me personally but all who drive and live in the county. From all that I have read, it is the air quality around fracking sites that is most damaging.

The negative impact of this pollution will be greater here than in states that do not have the temperature inversion that we have here in the winter. My daughter has asthma. I am concerned about her and the rest of the kids in this county who will have to breath in this stuff.

What is the hurry to open up fracking? A moratorium makes sense so that those studying the health effects have an opportunity to gather data.

It is true that fracking may result in lower fuel prices but to the extent that we promote the extraction and use of fossil fuels (and drive down the price), the less likely consumers and in those in industry will continue to look to alternative energy, which is a MUST in order to give us a chance to slow global warming. The fracking moratorium makes sense for Boulder. Please continue it.

To Whom it May Concern,

Abundant evidence from other counties and states across the country makes it clear that current methods of oil and gas exploration and production—including hydraulic fracturing, or fracking—pose direct health and safety risks to both citizens and the environment upon which we depend. As just one example, fracking in the state already uses billions of gallons of water, polluting this critical Colorado resource with hundreds of undisclosed chemicals.

As a resident of Boulder County, I request that the moratorium on oil and gas exploration and production be extended for the maximum possible term. Colorado's cities and counties should have more democratic control over how their natural resources are accessed and utilized. Until clear state policies are enacted that enable residents to determine what happens in our backyards, absolutely no oil and gas exploration should be allowed. These practices in their current form are simply too dangerous, and lack effective regulation at any level. The health and wellbeing of Colorado's residents should always take precedence over the profit margins of corporate interests.

Honorable County Commissioners,

My name is Toby Schunck, I am a resident of Boulder County.

I have seen vast stretches of our beautiful country destroyed by drilling and fracking.

I have been to places like Vernal, UT where the air quality is worse than in Los Angeles on a high pollution day.

I have been unable to drink the water when I was attending the Federal Law Enforcement Academy in Artesia, New Mexico.

I live in Boulder County because it is still a relatively clean place.

If this changes, I will be forced to move.

If a fracking job goes bad, there is no way to clean up thousands of tons of soil, rock and water.

The pollution will persist for thousands of years.

Fracking technology today is simply not safe.

Mineral exploration rights do not trump the rights of people who live, work and play.

We have the right to a clean environment.

Give back the money that you may have earned selling mineral rights and revoke the right to pollute our lands.

I urge you to promote clean, renewable energy.

I urge you to protect our environment, already severely damaged by overpopulation, resource depletion, greenhouse gas emissions and over-use.

With kind regards and best wishes to all of you,

Dear Boulder County Commissioners,

Because of the open space program, Boulder County is now one of the only counties on the front range where towns have clear boundaries and undeveloped land between them. The vision and courage of past commissioners created one of our most valued assets, the benefits of which continue to attract talent and opportunity to the area. Creating the open space program required strong vision on behalf of the community. A vision that was, at times, in opposition to individual interest.

Concerns about the impact of hydraulic fracturing today are akin to the concerns about unrestrained development in the 70's and 80's. The counties around Boulder seem to be awash in a wave of fracking. To our east, Weld County has the highest percentage of fracking permits issued in the state. Drilling rigs, holding ponds, and mobile water tanks are a regular feature of the landscape, outnumbering silos, windmills, and barns.

The future impact of these operations is, as yet, undetermined. I have a distinct concern about the unknown impact on agricultural lands. Boulder County is home to many organic farming operations with the capacity to scale. In many ways, the county is one of the few at the apex of the local food movement. The county's open space program and progressive land use policies put it in an excellent position to build a sustainable food system that will serve as a model to other communities.

The work on this front is gaining momentum.

The BLM estimates that 20% of fracking fluids are released as "usable" surface water. The implications of these releases have not been assessed in relation to farming and preserving our lands for future farming. 20% is evaporated from holding ponds. Recent studies by National Center for Atmospheric Research show heavy methane emissions over fracking sites. Methane is the third worst gas responsible for the destruction of the ozone layer.

Preserving the beauty and use of our agricultural and open lands benefits our entire community. Those benefits will continue to grow. Fracking benefits only a few at the cost of us all. Financial benefits in the form of taxes will dwindle while our lands may be negatively altered for years to come. Extending the moratorium will, at a minimum, allow more unbiased answers to be found and a thoughtful plan for the future of fracking in our county to be developed.

I urge you to extend the moratorium on fracking and continue the tradition of vision and courage for which Boulder County is celebrated.

Sincerely,

Dear Boulder County Commissioners and Boulder County Staff:

As a resident of Boulder County, I would like to take this opportunity to express my opposition to fracking in general and to express my full support for a continuing fracking moratorium.

Not too long ago at a public meeting, the Boulder County Commissioners candidly expressed their horror about what is taking place in nearby Erie and they were quite right to be concerned. And by now, horror stories concerning fracking have become commonplace and numerous studies are supporting what the "fracktivists" have said all along: today's fracking technology (like GMO technology) is dangerous for everything and everyone -- except for short term industry profits.

Moreover, there is currently a glut of fossil fuel in the United States while so-called "alternative technologies" are increasingly implemented throughout the world. Clearly, the movement away from fossil fuels will not go away; indeed, "alternative technologies" are increasingly becoming mainstream.

Even in Texas of all places -- Denton, Texas -- the citizens have spoken and have succeeded in banning local fracking. They have set the example that we must follow. Boulder County is up against much corporate and State pressure to capitulate to the greed of the few people who will benefit from this destructive practice which really has only illusory benefits at best.

Please extend the Moratorium!

Dear Commissioners,

When you make your decision, I hope you take into account the fact that many spills are not possible to clean up. I have gone through many of the spill reports in Weld county. I did a bit of analysis and here is what I found: In a five year period (8/7/09 to 8/7/14) there were 1138 spills reported in Weld county. That's over four a week that were noticed and reported by an industry that is lackluster in monitoring and reporting. 347 of these spills contaminated groundwater. That's more than one instance per week of groundwater contamination. Now let me tell you how they "remediated" the spills. They took equipment out there and sucked up all of the mud and water they could access. Then they retested. If the tests were negative for detecting contamination, they filled the hole in with dirt. If the tests were positive for continued contamination, here's what they did: They took charcoal and spread it on top of the contaminated area, then covered it with dirt. That's it. It does not take a genius to figure out that those areas were contaminated beyond all technological and financial means to clean it up. Some spills are just too extensive and run too deep to remediate.

Now let me tell you why I moved to the Boulder area. I moved here in 2011 because Boulder is one of the last bastions of foresight and planning in this country. One can feel the difference on a drive in from Denver. All along the way, there is example after example of blight, of land being carved up based on the rushed dictates of lewd money. One feels insignificant and cramped until at last one passes the final hill past Superior and remembers that there is sanity, that there are others who cherish what matters too. Those others have set priorities, putting a healthy environment and liveable landscape ahead of expedience and greed. Please join with those others and protect the rare treasure that is Boulder County. Please extend the moratorium.

I love Colorado as I am sure you do . I have been involved with Consciousness Based Education for over 42 years. The David Lynch Foundation supports this approach to education around the world. We as human beings need to develop ourselves to be in tune with the laws of nature. Fracking breaks the laws of nature by poisoning our air, water, and soil. You have a choice how we are to live our life here in Boulder County. Do you want us your people to breath bad air and drink contaminated water and food. The result we have seen is my chances of cancer go up, 1 in 15 babies die, and as the man from Greeley said you feel like you have the flu everyday. Please consider the extent of suffering this action of fracking can make on all of us. The choice is yours. For every action there is an equal and opposite reaction. What will the karma be? Suffering or bliss. What will it be. The reaction to this goes to each of you. The choice is your.

Hello,

It is absolutely appalling that hydro-electric fracturing is being allowed anywhere, let alone that it may be allowed here in Boulder county. All fracking wells will eventually fail, and all of the wells release toxic chemicals into the air, environment, and water. Our planet cannot afford to lose anymore water from our hydrologic cycle. Frack jobs use millions of gallons of water for a single well and contaminate it with know carcinogens and neurotoxins, and those are just the chemicals the oil and gas companies will disclose. We don't even know everything being pumped into the environment. Love thy neighbor, please extend the fracking moratorium.

P.S. California has had several sources of high quality drinking water contaminated with illegally dumped fracking waste water, making it dangerous and toxic to drink. It seems the oil and gas companies believe they have free reign to do whatever they want. Please don't sanctify their actions in Boulder County. Strict regulations won't help because fracking is inherently dangerous and desctructive. The so-called economic benefits are not worth it. These are not the kinds of jobs people want for themselves or their loved ones.

Dear commissioners, I strongly urge & plead with you to extend the fracking ban as long as you can. We do not need this in Boulder County.

I have been to Ault, Colorado. It is a place like out of a horror movie. Nothing but feed lots with cows awaiting to die & dust and trucks & noise. These communities may have money but they have NO quality of life. Boulder remains a safe haven in Colorado where you can breathe relatively clean air, find food to eat that isn't poisoned and see some beauty. Please, please don't let them frack. Support clean energy instead.

Sincerely, Linda, Lea Roberts

Boulder County Commissioners

Thank you for the unanimous decision made in June 2013 to enact a moratorium on oil and gas exploration in Boulder County. Your vote was greatly appreciated and crucial to the protection our community.

Now, the moratorium must be extended until we are assured that our communities and the environment are protected. We request that this moratorium be extended at least until June 2018 when: (1) health studies will provide data as to the safety of extraction activities next to homes, schools and businesses; (2) county or statewide regulations are in place to adequately protect our land, air, water and our communities; and (3) a monitoring system that is not based on self-reporting by oil and gas industry is ready to launch.

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Sincerely,

Mr. James Angerer

Dear Boulder County Commissioners,

I hope you will decide to save the beauty and pristine environment of Boulder County by banning fracking indefinitely in the county. By now, you have seen the studies showing that pregnant women have a much higher chance of birth defects when living close to fracking wells, seen the flaring of the well on E470 (which I thought you should only see in a 3rd world country that doesn't regulate air pollution) and witnessed the destruction of the landscape all around Boulder to the East. Face it - fracking is ugly, polluting, water hungry, and unsafe, and the people of Boulder County don't want it. It will drive down our home values, spoil our air and water, increase truck traffic, and take away the beauty of the open spaces that we all love so much. Why is so much of it happening in Colorado despite these issues? Money! There are large profits at stake! Please don't bend to this influence and stand up for what the people of Boulder county want and what you believe is right.

November 7, 2014

Dear Deb, Elise and Cindy,

Thank you for your caution and previous approvals of moratoria on additional oil and gas development within Boulder County, and now I urge you to do it all over again and extend this moratorium. Your staff has prepared an excellent report, and standing alone, provides sufficient cause. And we have your backs on this!

So much work has been done, with so many new developments, and yet it seems that we are not really in a dramatically different place than we were when you last extended the moratorium. Oil and gas development involving "fracking" is still threatening our county. We still do not have health studies. Related economics, technology, legal and political situations are still in evolving.

As if you needed more reasons, I would like to highlight several specific reasons to extend the moratorium, some of which may not have been mentioned in the staff report. I'm sorry for the length, but this issue is just so important to our county.

1. Economic instability

An oil and gas development bust has been predicted by a few economists for quite awhile, and with an oversupply of oil and gas internationally, and low prices for oil and gas, "fracking" may be in a precarious position, with vulnerable and unstable companies. The worst of all worlds would be for Boulder County to be fracked just before the bubble bursts. To quote an industry source,

"The sharp oil price fall from $100 last summer to below $80 in just three months will bankrupt small US oil producers who need at least $80 per barrel to be profitable," and "Fracking is vulnerable."

From the Guardian in the UK, and note that oil prices are low, not high:

"The US 'shale boom' looks increasingly as though it will turn into one of those bubbles that we humans seem so good at inflating and then bursting. The oil-and-gas industry has been losing cash by the tens of billions, because high drilling costs mean most companies are spending more than they are earning from low-price fracked gas, even when high-price fracked oil is added to the equation."

It is hard to see how keeping the oil in the ground a bit longer can be considered a taking under these conditions. It is just prudence until conditions work themselves out.

There is no indication that these prices mean that drilling and the associated operations will not continue to be a threat in our area. These companies are over-leveraged and have to keep drilling to cover unprofitable wells. Low prices or high, more wells are going in soon in Erie. It does mean, however, that companies are even more likely to cut costs to the bone, cut corners, fail to use best practices, and avoid protections.

2. The Land Use Code needs to be updated.

The County chose to make more protective regulations part of the requirements for an expedited application. With the current economic situation, it is even less likely that companies would choose to use the expedited application in the County's Oil and Gas regulations. The result would be 1800 wells with performance to match what the county inspector found, air releases at 43% and water releases at 29%.

As mentioned in the staff report, technology is evolving, and there are new air quality rules. The Land Use Code must address these.

3. Without additional health studies, no public servant can do their job properly.

The report mentions several times that "Currently no funding has been approved to evaluate the health risk impacts associated with the emissions being studied. The rah-rah mission of the COGCC is at least supposed to "consistent with the protection of public health, safety, and welfare." Without additional studies, how do they know that anything they are doing is "consistent with the protection of public health?" This should have been addressed before widespread fracking operations were ever permitted.

4. The Governor's Task Force on State and Local Regulation of Oil and Gas Operations.

Noting that this panel does NOT represent those who worked on ballot issues and moratoria, I wouldn't expect miracles from this group. However, the panel has not completed its work. We do not know what the recommendations would be and what can make it through the Colorado Legislature.

5. Not all impacts from the chemicals involved in the process have been considered fully, and the Code must reflect them.

Even when not explicitly identified or implicated as harmful to human health, the chemicals used OR brought to the surface in the heavy industrial process of gas and oil development involving fracking will have an impact. The staff report mentions chlorides and hydrogen sulfide. Will our soil become saltier and/or more radioactive? Will contaminated water due to spills or migration prove to be more corrosive?

6. We still do not have sufficient monitoring and enforcement.

7. The loss of productive agricultural soil to contamination and landfills should be addressed.

The staff report mentions soil, and an article appeared in the Denver Post entitled "Colorado faces oil boom 'death sentence' for soil, eyes microbe fix.

8. Funds to cap wells should be addressed further.

The "bust" in oil and gas development's boom/bust cycle is happening in Wyoming. As companies declare bankruptcy and abandon their wells, the public is being forced to pay expenses to cap wells. Our severance tax rate is lower than Wyoming's (2-5% vs. 6%), so that the money to address even this issue is lower. There will be "orphan" sites where the taxpayer will pay for clean up. Every county in the state with oil and gas development will likely have to address this issue.

9. Industrialization

The scale of the industrialization seen by driving down Hwy 66 in Longmont toward Weld County and perhaps up Weld County Rd is truly shocking and horrifying and goes well beyond single old-fashioned looking wells in a farm field. This activity would profoundly affect the quality of life in Boulder County: Industrial operations, with additional roads, land clearing, tanks, flaring, pipelines, trucks, toxic, sometimes radioactive waste, contamination, reduced air quality, potential for fire, and decline in nearby property value. As a society, we generally accept the need for zoning in our communities. It is unthinkable that the "sacrifice zones" associated with this activity cannot be confined.

10. Climate Change/Air

The fact that VOC and methane emissions are being under-reported is a real concern.

Many scientists believe that methane is actually a more worrisome greenhouse gas than carbon dioxide, and the UN's IPCC just released its 2014 report, with stark warnings that serious climate change is almost certainly manmade, it's already happening, and we need to address it. As Naomi Klein says, "It's already too late to stop climate change, but it's not too late to save our civilization. It's certainly not too late to try."

Another quote:

"Finally, it bears repeating that natural gas from even the best fracked wells is still a climate-destroying fossil fuel. If we are to avoid catastrophic warming, our natural gas consumption has to peak sometime in the next 10 to 15 years, according to studies by both the Center for American Progress and the Union of Concerned Scientists."

And here we are, talking about an activity that will leak additional methane into the atmosphere, within our Boulder County. At some point, lines in the sand have to be drawn, and climate change must be addressed. Where better than Boulder County?

11. The local economy must be considered: go slow

As mentioned above, the boom/bust cycle of gas and oil development is well known. Not only are we now seeing that in Wyoming, but here in Colorado as well.

The town of Meeker is an example, where prosperity based on oil shale and natural gas has turned to an outflow of jobs and struggling businesses.

A study called "The Economic Impact of Shale Gas Development on State and Local Economies: Benefits, Costs, and Uncertainties, mentions several studies that claim a negative relationship between abundance of natural resources and economic growth. One researcher pointed out that "the areas of the United States having the highest levels of long-term poverty, outside of those having a history of racial inequalities, tend to be found in the very places that were once the site of thriving extractive industries."

The Boulder brand is also important to all communities in the county.

One of the suggestions to combat this effect was that "the resource should be developed at a slow pace, thereby improving the chances that the economy and society can adjust and the crowding-out effect may be reduced."

12. The political climate is still in flux, and some legal challenges are ongoing.

While the Task Force seems to have put other political operations regarding fracking on hold, that certainly will not last. The staff report mentions Loveland. It should be noted that Loveland is a conservative city, more conservative than the state as a whole. That the vote there was close indicates the politics are not settled.

Please note that fracking bans were passed in several locations in our country this fall, including Denton, TX (a city very familiar with the operations) and San Benito, CA.

While deliberating, I hope that you will take into account two additional considerations:

- There is no benefit to Boulder County from oil and gas development, only potential harm. We love this county and need to protect it.
- We need to get this right. To quote friends, "Once they frack, we can never go back."

Take care,

Dear Commissioners Domenico, Gardner, Jones, and others,

Thank you for considering public input on whether to extend or amend the current temporary moratorium on Boulder County's processing of applications for oil and gas development in the unincorporated County. I appreciate the opportunity to provide input on this important and urgent matter.

There's a lot of information available on natural gas development (NGD). I find it challenging to find objective, scientifically sound information upon which to base my own opinions. In April 2014, the National Institutes of Health published the article, "Birth Outcomes and Maternal Residential Proximity to Natural Gas Development in Rural Colorado". This is not only objective and scientifically sound, it's also recent, well-defended, and supported by our very own Colorado School of Public Health. The article is available on the NIH's website, but here's a brief excerpt.

"...we observed an association between density and proximity of natural gas wells within a 10-mile radius of maternal residence and prevalence of CHDs [congenital heart defects] and possibly NTDs [neural tube defects, i.e. birth defects of the brain, spine, or spinal cord]...Studies in Colorado, Texas, Wyoming, and Oklahoma have demonstrated that NGD results in emission of VOCs [volatile organic compounds], NO<sub>2</sub>, sulfur dioxide (SO<sub>2</sub>), PM [particulate matter], and PAHs [polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons] from either the well itself or from associated drilling processes or related infrastructure (i.e., drilling muds, hydraulic fracturing fluids, tanks containing waste water and liquid hydrocarbons, diesel engines, compressor stations, dehydrators, and pipelines) ... Some of these pollutants, such as toluene, xylenes, and benzene, are suspected teratogens [causes malformation of an embryo] or mutagens [likely carcinogens]...and are known to cross the placenta..., raising the possibility of fetal exposure to these and other pollutants resulting from NGD. Currently, there are few studies on the effects of air pollution or NGD on birth outcomes." [McKenzie LM, Guo R, Witter RZ, Savitz DA, Newman LS, Adgate JL. 2014. Birth outcomes and maternal residential proximity to natural gas development in rural Colorado. Environ Health Perspect 122:412–417; <http://dx.doi.org/10.1289/ehp.1306722>]

NIH, our nation's medical research agency, has correlated NGD with adverse health effects on our children, and advises there are potential health effects of NGD we're still unaware of. They've proven NGD can negatively affect our children's health when it's performed on the order of tens-of-thousands of feet away - much farther than Colorado's setback regulations require. The health of our children is the number one reason my wife and I are opposed to oil and gas development around our Heatherwood community in Boulder County.

My wife and I have worked extremely hard to provide our three young kids a healthy, loving, ethical, educational and empathetic home. We invest in Heatherwood specifically because of its proximity to beautiful open space and sustainable agriculture, the established community and wonderful elementary school. We hope to provide at least five lifetimes of service and investment in our community, as demonstrated by our involvement in CU student health, UCHealth oncology nursing, honorable military service, government-contract engineering in Boulder, volunteerism with BCHHS, etc. As hard as we've worked to get here, as much as we love being here, and as costly as it would be to do so, we will sadly but assuredly consider relocating if additional oil and gas development is allowed in Boulder County before the health implications are understood. "Understood" is not an easy thing to quantify, but it's clear from recent articles such as the one above and ongoing studies such as FRAPPE (sic) and DISCOVER-AQ that we're at least a few years away from even having the data on which to base an understanding.

The natural gas being extracted from deep beneath the earth by NGD has been down there for millions of years. This is an unfathomably long time. It's not going to disappear if we extend the moratorium on processing applications for oil and gas development while the government and scientific community gather more information, enumerate and prioritize the risks, and formalize the standards that appropriately protect our most precious non-renewable resources: our children! While I sincerely hope not, I suspect that by then we'll concern ourselves not with how to keep oil and gas development out of Boulder County, but how to help our neighbors devastated by oil and gas development address the damages they've incurred.

Respectfully,

Dear Commissioners,

I have lived in Boulder County for 40 years and love our beautiful county from east to west and north to south and I cannot sit idly by while Big Oil money is allowed to (ab)use our precious resources, for any reason.

It will be sacrificing the well-being of All Life by allowing the oil and gas industry to rape our earth, here or anywhere really. Water is precious in Colorado and fracking has been PROVEN to (ab)use huge amounts of water, pollute water tables, poison communities, and cause earthquakes and other seismic disturbances where none had existed.

This is wrong! Please, do not allow the Oil and Gas industry to frack Boulder County, anywhere!! Protect the future!

Sincerely,
Emily Rose

Top 10 Reasons Why the Moratorium Should be Extended

10. Property Values

Oil and gas development near and around neighborhoods will lead to a decrease in property values, along with an associated drop in property taxes.

9. Tourism

Local tourism and especially outdoor sports and recreation will be negatively impacted. Athletes come from around the world to train here, and countless others come for the natural beauty, oil and gas development along our roads and open space trails will discourage them from coming.

8. Traffic

East county roads are already over burdened as traffic has increased in recent years due to population grow and in-commuting. Adding additional heavy vehicle traffic will only worsen congestion, make the roads more dangerous for drivers and cyclists, and increase the wear and deterioration on our infrastructure.

7. Noise & Light Pollution

Fracking sites with 24-hour activity during production will produce significant noise and light pollution in an extensive area around each site, possibly leading to extensive noise and light pollution throughout the county. This also includes the visual impact of large rigs and containment walls in an area prized for its scenic vistas.

6. Residential Precedence

Without appropriate setback limits fracking sites turn residential neighborhoods into industrial sites. These neighborhoods are established, some for many decades if not longer. These areas were never intended to host even temporary industrial activity, and their precedence must be respected.

5. Carbon Emissions & Greenhouse Gasses

Methane released from oil and gas wells, not to mention the increased CO2 emissions from the increased vehicular and other industrial sources, is a step backward for counteracting global warming and climate change. In a county dedicated to the goals of reducing emissions the encouragement of further oil and gas development is counterproductive to meeting our reduction goals locally and beyond.

4. All the cool kids are doing it...

Multiple cities, counties, states, and countries; locally and across the country and the world, have passed measures to ban fracking from their communities. This is not a position where Boulder stands radically apart from the norm, we are in fact behind the curve on joining millions of citizens who's governments have sided with them in the cause of responsible caution and stewardship.

3. Community

Boulder County is the home of many vibrant communities. Hearing friends and neighbors discuss how if the county's moratorium expires they would feel compelled to leave the county bodes ill for the future of our towns and communities. The fear of unchecked oil and gas development alone is enough to hurt our communities, the reality of increased development could tear them apart.

2. Point of No Return

Opening the county to continued oil and gas development is a one-way path. Once drilling starts and energy companies start volume production in our community there will be no turning back. This include an influx of temporary workers from outside the county putting an additional burden on our services and infrastructure. These companies will not have the long term best interests of our neighborhoods and county in mind, and are focused on the short term economic benefits of getting in on the current development bubble.

1. Water

We live in the high desert where water and water rights are closely regulated to ensure that we have sufficient water resources for our county. Fracking will convert many millions of gallons of fresh water into unusable industrial byproduct that must be disposed of and not returned to the water cycle. Where will the water for increased development come from, and has the county truly considered the impact on our farms, cities, and local water supplies?

Commissioners,

Please consider this points and we urge you to extend the current moratorium on development until mid-2018.

Thank you,

Dear Commissioners –

While there is a litany of reasons to cite why fracking is toxic on every level—to the earth (not only contamination but earthquakes), huge quantities of water poisoned in a drought-ridden state, polluted air, and above all the health of humans and other species anywhere nearby—I think you know all those and probably feel as though you have been inundated by fracking water yourself in the deluge of information with which you've had to deal.

So this is just to let you know you have one more of huge numbers of people who support you in your courageous stand of a moratorium in the past and hope dearly that you will extend it. We don't know enough about fracking to allow it, and what we do know suggests every reason not to.

Thank you very much for dealing with this very high-pressure issue—if we don't make a stand now, there will be less and less to save in the future.

Dear commissioners:

Please extend the moratorium on fracking. This technology has not proven to be safe for the environment in any way, nor for people who live near the wells. The fracking process uses chemicals whose compounds do not need to be revealed...yet, the wells are putting out gas, putting those chemicals into underground geologic systems that can cause earthquakes and pollute the underground water. As you know, there are many cases of home wells providing "water" that can burn, and near La Veta in southern Colorado, where a lot of fracking is being conducted, well houses have blown up, and people are getting sick from the water.

This is not to mention that the wells in nearby counties are causing a lot of pollution and other adverse effects simply from the traffic, lights, noise, etc.

Let's, instead of enabling this dangerous practice, consider ways to use less gas. And, the fracking gas is being exported rather than being fully used "at home"...one wonders at the economics of the system.

Please, for the sake of our environment and our citizens, maintain the moratorium on fracking.

Hello

I will be presenting at the public hearing on Monday.

Will there be any way to plug in a laptop for projection of a 3 minute powerpoint presentation - or a way to show some images, even as such as jpg's? I can save to a CD or a thumb drive, etc..

Thank you.

We should be cutting back on fracking and continue to ban on fracking. It has been tied to too much long-term damage to the environment and health of individuals living near fracking sites. It has been linked to earthquakes, and pollution of water and land. We need to concentrate more on renewable energy like solar and wind power. If cities in Germany (which gets far less sunlight than we do) can go fully renewable, so can Boulder County.

Gilbert and Jeane Zyzniewski who have resided at 4780 Chatham St. Boulder, CO for 32 years strongly encourage an extension of the current moratorium on Boulder County's processing of applications for oil and gas development in the unincorporated county. Dear Boulder County Commissioners and staff:

Extent of well testing and neighborhood notifications required by Article 12 of Boulder County Land Use Code are insufficient.

Article 12 requires identification of abandoned wells and water wells within ¼ mile of the projected path of the bore (EDPR) and neighborhood meetings for “interested parties” who must be given notice per 12-400(H)(2) (EDPR and SDPR).

[NOTE: there is a typographic error in the document that refers to the noticing language as 12-400(G)(2) rather than (H)(2); the typo is in 12-702(A).]

These requirements were in response to concerns about the potential for water well contamination by hydraulic fracturing. A recent study [Li 2014] of the well testing data from the state indicates that the majority of the methane contamination found is biogenic and that two cases of thermogenic methane were identified, and “Methane concentration did not correlate with distance although the occurrence of methane levels above 5 mg/L appeared to decrease at distances greater than 700 m.” [Li 2014]. While the authors conclude that this is evidence of a lack of contamination resulting from oil and gas operations (“elevated methane levels do not appear to be the result of increased drilling and fracturing” [Li 2014]), I argue that the conclusion is invalid or misleading, and in fact the study supports the need for more testing and study. I offer the following reasons:

1. There is a lack of real baseline data because of widespread oil and gas development activity [Li 2014] before groundwater testing began.
2. Thermogenic methane was detected in 2 (5%) of the 40 wells tested with isotopic analysis. It is commonly understood that thermogenic methane contamination can result from poor annulus casing or failed casings. This kind of contamination requires only one oil/gas well be drilled, not a high concentration of drilling. The authors of the study stress the fact that these two wells are located outside the area of high concentration of drilling, to make a valid but misleading conclusion that thermogenic contamination is not associated with high concentration of oil and gas well completions. While this study does not find a correlation between distance to well and presence of thermogenic gasses, such as Jackson, et al [Jackson 2013] do, it does suggest that further work is needed in this area.

3. 3. This study found that “Methane concentration did not correlate with distance although the occurrence of methane levels above 5 mg/L appeared to decrease at distances greater than 700 m.”[emphasis added] [Li 2014]

4. 4. The study showed a clear temporal relationship between drilling and rising methane concentrations over the entire study area. The authors suggest that this temporal relationship may be due to depletion of groundwater (because methane concentration increases with well depth), however, this hypothesis was not explored, as they gave no discussion of data supporting increase of methane concentration over time in wells of fixed depth.

5. 5. Fluid connectivity could result from propagation of hydraulic fracturing fluids through induced fractures combined with natural faults [Davies 2012] (and possible additionally combined with fractures from stimulated adjacent wells [API] or reactivation of faults as far away as 100's of meters) [Davies 2012] [Davies 2012a] [Lacazette 2012] [Davies 2013].

In light of the above, please direct the staff to expand the noticing requirements and the mapping requirements for both the EDPR and SDPR to include the following :

Residents within a much larger distance of the proposed bore need to be given notice. The existing oil and gas wells with which there could be communication during hydraulic fracturing should be a factor in determining the extent of the noticing requirements, and the owners of water wells within this expanded area should be encouraged to have their wells tested at no cost to them. The American Petroleum Institute [API] suggests that a safety factor be added when considering the potential for communication of fractures; such a factor should be added in to determine the extent of the notices required. Said safety factor might be as much as miles, considering the findings of Mckenzie, et al. in a recent study [McKenzie 2014].

Residents within the notice area should be told of observed and potential emissions of toxic compounds near oil and gas wells [Petron 2014][Rabinowitz 2014], and given instructions for reporting rotten-egg smells and other observations that might indicate toxic emissions are present.

Sincerely,

Nancy Hall

Excerpt:Reactivation of faults and resultant seismicity occurs due to a reduction in effective stress on fault planes. Hydraulic fracturing operations can trigger seismicity because it can cause an increase in the fluid pressure in a fault zone. Based upon the research compiled here we propose that this could occur by three mechanisms. Firstly, fracturing fluid or displaced pore fluid could enter the fault. Secondly, there may be direct connection with the hydraulic fractures and a fluid pressure pulse could be transmitted to the fault. Lastly, due to poroelastic properties of rock, deformation or inflation due to hydraulic fracturing could increase fluid pressure in the fault or in fractures connected to the fault. The following pathways for fluid or a fluid pressure pulse are proposed: (a) directly from the wellbore; (b) through new, stimulated hydraulic fractures; (c) through pre-existing fractures and minor faults; or (d) through the pore network of permeable beds or along bedding planes. The reactivated fault could be intersected by the wellbore or it could be 10s to 100s of metres from it.

Note: Authors set out to show low probability of upward migration of stimulated hydraulic fracture to settle minds about ability of stimulation to contaminate aquifers [Davies 2013]. Conclude that probability that an upward propagating hydraulic fracture extends vertically > 500 m is ~ 0.8%. If that is a % of the number of fractures, it could amount to a significant number, given the number of stages per bore and the number of bores per square mile. None of their data are from the D-J Basin, and their studies show considerable variability from basin to basin, based on the local geology.

Excerpt 1: Natural fracture systems consist of joints (natural extensional fractures) and faults (natural shear fractures). Natural fractures may become seismically active during a fracture treatment through at least two and perhaps more mechanisms. The first mechanism is fluid pressure increase in the fracture via a direct fluid connection with the treatment well. By “direct fluid connection” we mean that a fluid pressure pulse can be transmitted either through the interconnected pore system of the rock, through connected fractures, or both. Note that a fluid pressure pulse can be transmitted with or without significant fluid flow. By “significant fluid flow” we mean a change of the fluid composition in the affected natural fracture. The second mechanism is changes in the resolved shear stress on, or the fluid pressure within, a natural fracture due to inflation. Poroelasticity couples stress in the solid skeleton of the rock to the in-situ fluids so that stress changes can affect the fluid pressure in a natural fracture without fluid flow. “Inflation” is the elastic deformation of the rock volume around the treatment well due to introduction of the frac fluid. Such inflation is routinely observed during tiltmeter studies of hydraulic fracture treatments. The routine observation of surface deformation with tiltmeters demonstrates that such elastic deformations propagate over 1 km vertically.

In conclusion, although we agree with Davies et al (2012) regarding propagation of artificial hydraulic fractures, hydraulic fracture fluid and fluid pressure pulses can move greater distances in preexisting natural fracture systems. Fluid pressure pulses can be transmitted without significant flow, i.e. without changing the original fluid composition in the fracture network.

( author manuscript at https://www.dur.ac.uk/resources/refine/reply\_to\_hyd\_frac\_comment.pdf )

Excerpt: Lacazette and Geiser (2013) in their comment propose that fluid pressure pulses triggered by hydraulic fracturing move vertical distances of ~ 1 km through pre-existing natural fracture systems, hundreds of metres further than the maximum propagation distance for stimulated hydraulic fractures (Fisher and Warpinski, 2011; Davies et al., 2012). This is detected using a new tomographic fracture imaging method (Geiser et al., 2012). The work of Davies et al. (2012) remains valid as a statistical analysis of stimulated hydraulic fracture height measurements derived using microseismicity. But this avoids the important question; does the new tomographic fracture imaging method reveal pre-existing fractures, not necessarily generated natural hydraulic fracturing, that allow for a far more vertically extensive transmission of fracking or pore fluid? If so what are the implications?

Conclusions: In this large cohort, we observed an association between density and proximity of natural gas wells within a 10-mile radius of maternal residence and prevalence of congenital heart defects and possibly neural tube defects. Greater specificity in exposure estimates is needed to further explore these associations.

It's a great day to be alive in Boulder!

The other day I sent an email to the "oil & gas" comments and received an automated reply in which was contained the following statement:

Boulder County is concerned about the potential for significantly expanded oil and gas development within the county, and supports appropriate, tighter restrictions and increased local control to mitigate the impacts of these activities.

This concerns me a great deal inasmuch as this reads like you have already decided that my life, liberty and constitutional rights can be impacted and violated by allowing expanded oil and gas development in Boulder County.

Your support of appropriate tighter restrictions, local control and mitigating impacts (of oil & gas) is STILL a violation of my life, health and environment. Restriction, control and reduced HARM is STILL a violation of people's rights and health. I do NOT consent! Read the constitution and you'll see rather clearly we have a right to life, not a reduced state of life from being forced by you or the State to suffer thousands of trucks, noisy machinery, exhaust fumes, toxic chemicals, polluted air, toxic emissions and all the other consequences of neighborhood-localized industrial mining and oil refining in the form of a practice called fracking.

I just wanted to clear that up so can provide these details to your county legal counsel and staff ... who'd be well-advised to re-read the both the Federal and State constitutions.

I recently read Kristen Iverson's memoir, Full Body Burden: Growing Up in the Shadow of Rocky Flats and I was struck by the parallels between the language used today to justify hydraulic fracturing and the language used in the 1970s through the 1990s to convince the public that there was nothing to be concerned about.

Reports in the press covered up and denied problems with radioactive emissions in the same way we are being inundated by industry claims that there is no definitive proof that fracking causes illness, water contamination, or air pollution. Yet there have been numerous studies that tell us just the opposite. There is indeed reason to be concerned about the long term repercussions of fracking.

It is your responsibility to protect the citizens you represent and the environment we live inhabit. This is one instance when "innocent until proven guilty" should not be considered. There is enough evidence to support caution and patience in the face of dire consequences of fracking.

I urge you to extend the moratorium on hydraulic fracturing.

Hello,

I am writing to ask you to please extend the current temporary moratorium on processing oil and gas development applications.

Water is a precious resource and with the Colorado River in an extended drought, allowing fracking, which is incredibly water intensive to expand is not a good idea. Well sites in Colorado already use enough water for 66,400 to 118,400 homes in Colorado annually and that water does not go back into the system, unlike residential use.

We already don't have enough water to go around- do we really want to lose out and contaminate more of it?

Until the industry comes up with a better system to clean, dispose of and/or reuse the sometimes radioactive fracking fluid, it shouldn't be in our backyard.

While oil and gas has long been a part of Colorado's economy, now is not the time to expand fracking in particular and the smartest way to do that is to extend the moratorium.

November 6, 2014

Dear Commissioners:

First, I want to thank you for initiating the current moratorium on oil and gas drilling in Boulder County. Your action is truly appreciated by many of your constituents. I also want to thank you for considering an extension of the moratorium beyond January 1, 2015.

I and many others urge you to allow County residents adequate time to view the results of several ongoing studies analyzing the impacts from hydraulic fracturing on, water and air quality. According to legal analysis by the Sierra Club legal team, precedent exists for such an extension when a governmental entity is awaiting relevant information necessary to inform a public policy response to an activity that risks substantial impacts on communities.

Another reason to extend the moratorium is the complexity and heavy impacts of hydraulic fracturing require an equally complex and effective regulatory response to protect communities and the environment. Effective regulation takes considerable time to develop and implement. Further, the virtual absence of an effective federal and state regulatory framework places a heavy burden on local communities to protect themselves from the impacts of a technology wielded by an industry that seems quite comfortable with unaccountability and impunity.

Most importantly, there is the moral imperative to honor the Precautionary Principle, which says that activities posing potential widespread and irreversible negative impacts should not be permitted until sufficient information is available to ensure such impacts can either be prevented or mitigated. It is far from clear whether hydraulic fracturing can be accomplished in a safe and healthful manner, regardless of regulatory imperatives. Almost daily, new evidence surfaces throughout the country from both experience and scientific investigation that hydraulic fracturing, its infrastructure and the large volume of waste it generates pose substantial risks to public health, water and air quality, geologic stability, habitats, wildlife, adjacent property values, public infrastructure, fiscal integrity, and community peace and security.

It is in light of these aforementioned reasons that I urge you to extend the moratorium at least until June 2018 so that Boulder County has an opportunity to make well considered scientifically based and wise decisions, which will forever affect our environment, our quality of life, and the long term health of our communities and residents.

Boulder County Commissioners

Thank you for the unanimous decision made in June 2013 to enact a moratorium on oil and gas exploration in Boulder County. Your vote was greatly appreciated and crucial to the protection our community.

Now, the moratorium must be extended until we are assured that our communities and the environment are protected. We request that this moratorium be extended at least until June 2018 when: (1) health studies will provide data as to the safety of extraction activities next to homes, schools and businesses; (2) county or statewide regulations are in place to adequately protect our land, air, water and our communities; and (3) a monitoring system that is not based on self-reporting by oil and gas industry is ready to launch.

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Dear Commissioners,

Please do not let oil and gas operations further penetrate into existing open space parks, land preservation, and trail areas in Boulder County. Such activities are not consistent with the intent of open space acquisition. Many of us have lived in Boulder County for decades, and have without fail supported additional taxes for open space. We entrust our elected officials to preserve and protect these areas for wildlife, and sensible recreation use--not for exploitation by oil and gas interests.

Thank you,

Barbara

Boulder County Commissioners

Thank you for the unanimous decision made in June 2013 to enact a moratorium on oil and gas exploration in Boulder County. Your vote was greatly appreciated and crucial to the protection our community.

Now, the moratorium must be extended until we are assured that our communities and the environment are protected. We request that this moratorium be extended at least until June 2018 when: (1) health studies will provide data as to the safety of extraction activities next to homes, schools and businesses; (2) county or statewide regulations are in place to adequately protect our land, air, water and our communities; and (3) a monitoring system that is not based on self-reporting by oil and gas industry is ready to launch.

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Sincerely,

Kathy Gritz

Commissioners,

I urge you to extend the moratorium on fracking in Boulder county. We live in Heatherwood, and our beloved open space is definitely at risk if fracking is allowed. Even if they don't start drilling, our property value will go down. I know you've heard all the arguments and reasons why fracking is not needed, uneconomical, and hazardous. There is no harm - except perhaps to big oil - in delaying the process.

Dear Boulder County Commissioners and staff:

Hydrogen Sulfide is a concern not being addressed by Article 12 of the Boulder County Land Use Code.

I have testified in the past about hydrogen sulfide being a product of oil and gas extraction and the risks associated with its emission where operations are taking place [Lee 2014]. If my memory serves me, I was told by Bo Co Health Department staff that while emissions of H<sub>2</sub>S is a matter of legitimate concern elsewhere, hydrogen sulfide is not produced here on the Front Range due to the geology. I have recently come across evidence that it does indeed appear here during oil and gas operations [Macey 2014], and so I ask that you direct staff to explore this hazard and what can be done to prevent it and mitigate it when emissions are found. Specifically, please delay the processing of new applications until Chapter 12 can be amended to require state-of-the-art monitoring and controls [Elsevier 2014] for hydrogen sulfide, including scrubbing of emissions at well pads, disaster planning for hydrogen sulfide such as required in Texas [Lee 2014], and any other measures needed to address this hazard.

Conclusions: Air concentrations of potentially dangerous compounds and chemical mixtures are frequently present near oil and gas production sites. Community-based research can provide an important supplement to state air quality monitoring programs.

Excerpt: Hydrogen sulfide (H<sub>2</sub>S), a naturally occurring chemical in oil and natural gas, is present at drilling operations, compressor stations and refineries. As a byproduct of the combustion of hydrocarbons during drilling,

flaring and production of natural gas, H<sub>2</sub>S is released into the atmosphere. H<sub>2</sub>S exposure contributed to 60 deaths according to BLS statistics from 2001- 2010.

Because it is heavier than air, H<sub>2</sub>S settles and accumulates in concentrations, exposing workers to this corrosive chemical vapors and risking serious, even fatal, health and safety hazards. The tell-tale rotten egg smell might alert workers to exposure, but continuous exposure can lead to olfactory desensitization.

Many workers wear a H<sub>2</sub>S monitor to alert them of dangerous limits. OSHA recommends best practices to actively monitor H<sub>2</sub>S concentrations and worker training but regulatory groups disagree over the acceptable ceiling of exposure. While OSHA recommends 20 ppm, NIOSH holds at 10 ppm and the American Conference of Governmental Industrial Hygienists (ACGIH) limits the threshold at 1 ppm. “H<sub>2</sub>S is dangerous and must be handled and treated properly throughout all stages of drilling and production,” said Sheldon McKee, Director Business & Product Development at AMGAS. “We want to push the industry forward and continue to work to raise the standards of H<sub>2</sub>S treatment and removal.”

Featured in the January 2014 issue of New Technology Magazine, Calgary based AMGAS, a leader in H<sub>2</sub>S treatment since 1989, launched its latest in chemical scrubbing equipment –the Absorbital 320 MAX, which scrubs, or converts, high concentrations of H<sub>2</sub>S to nonreversible water soluble byproducts, preventing the release of toxic gases into the air.

Dear County Commissioners,

I am in support of banning fracking in Boulder County. Fracking is such a bad idea, it confounds me that it is spoken about in any positive terms.

As we all know, water is probably our most precious resource and yet between 1 and 8 million gallons of water are used for each fracking job. Only 30-50% is reusable. We simply cannot afford this waste. Additionally, up to 600 chemicals, including known carcinogens, are mixed with water and injected into the ground. There are upwards of 1,000 documented cases of sensory, respiratory, and neurological damage caused to citizens living near fracking wells. This is unacceptable. The waste fluid also contaminates our air in the form of many gases including high levels of methane gas which create ground level ozone. Do we really want to add to CO2s depletion of the ozone? Each gas well requires 400 tanker trucks to carry water and supplies. Again, this adds to pollution. And of course, our beautiful environment is threatened beyond belief as well as our property values. It's time to take a stand and do the right thing and ban fracking in Boulder County. We need to invest in renewable energy sources in a serious way.

I live in Niwot and have been a resident of Boulder County since 1977. I am appalled that the commissioners would allow our precious water and air to be contaminated for the imaginable future by short sighted oil and gas interests. This is not the direction that we need to be going as a county or as a nation. Please do your job, or if you are unable to because of the economic pressure, just be honest and state publicly that you are selling out our environment because you cannot or will not stand up to the oil and gas industry. That would be the most honest thing you could do.

Greetings,

Today I found this study:

<http://comingcleaninc.org/assets/media/images/Reports/cc-rpt-fracking%2010.14.pdf>

It shows serious health affects arise when living within the vicinity of a fracking tower. Although gas companies may have a right to their minerals, do they have a right to lowering property values of homeowners? Do they have a right to poison the local residents? Maintaining property value and health are top priorities to citizens.

Extending the moratorium will give the people the opportunity to bring these studies to light, in spite of the gas industries attempts to quell opposition. When the populous is informed, we can then make smarter decisions.

Please extend the moratorium to allow time for the populous to be educated on the matter, and address adequate solutions accordingly.

Thanks,
Josh

Dear Boulder County Commissioners,

I am writing to plead with you to extend the Oil and Gas Moratorium for at least another two years. This highly industrialized process of Fracking is controversial for very good reason. Although proponents for Fracking tout that it will increase job growth and be good for the economy; communities where fracking is in their backyard have seen increased rates of crime, earth quakes, infrastructure issues like road damage but even more concerning is the increased air pollution levels that are considered beyond acceptable for national EPA levels such as in Weld County. The small community of Erie, Colorado with about 400 wells has pollutant levels higher than Los Angeles and Houston, Texas.

Do we really want hundreds of wells right in our beautiful county?? Please consider how having this major industrial process will impact Boulder County's desirability and tourism. We need to really look at the long term effects of hydraulic fracturing and take this time to examine how it is impacting other communities where it is happening already.

Dear Commissioners,

I have lived in Colorado all my life and moved to Boulder two and a half years ago. I considered settling in other parts of the country but was compelled to stay here due to the beauty of this state, as well as to the visual beauty of Boulder and its appealing combination of urban amenities and small town ease. As we know, many other visitors and residents feel as I do about charms of this county. It seems clear to me that in order to secure tourism for the future, as well as maintain Boulder's high property values (not to mention its quality of life), we must decline to allow hydraulic fracturing in the area. I understand that the moratorium on hydraulic fracturing is set to expire in a few days, and I urge you to extend it for as long as possible.

Thank you for allowing public sentiment to influence this important decision--I know that it must be a demanding undertaking to consider every individual's opinion!

Dear Commissioners,

I am writing to you to plead with you to extend the fracking moratorium in Boulder County until at least 2017, when the CU studies on frackings effects are published. I live in Louisville, and am a professional gardener and permaculturalist. I recently read the county's Roads Report regarding the 110 miles of Eastern Boulder County which they "studied" in regards to fracking as many as 600 (or more) wells and what effect that might have. Are we seriously considering sacrificing this land so utterly that it becomes essentially an industrial mineral extraction zone? Are we pretending that building 6 wells per mile in this area won't utterly destroy East Boulder as we know it? And potentially poison our ground water?

This is our farmland with many cherished organic farms and CSA's, our rivers and lakes, our big vulnerable cottonwood stands. All irreplaceable. From 119 to 285, from South Boulder to Longmont, I have driven these roads all summer, on my way to tend gardens and native pollinator landscapes. Giving thanks for such a lush summer of blessed water, feeling grateful to live in such a beautiful place, with so many skillfull, thoughtfull, creative people , and praying for its protection. Praying that the invisible boundaries which are keeping the fracking wells at bay hold, and become firm and permanent.

When a people lose control of their land base, their water, and freedom from chemical trespass, they lose the very sources of all health, wealth, and happiness- not just for themselves, but for generations to come. We must not surrender our right to protect ourselves and the Natural World.

I am confident that when we "just say no" to fracking, to fossil fuels, and commit ourselves to the establishment of truly sustainable energy production grids and the intelligent design of our buildings and communities, humanity will rise to the occassion with miraculous swiftness and success. All of the elements of success are here in Boulder County, and I pray that we might become a beacon to the world, rather than just another poisoned place in America that used to be a great place to live.

Please protect this Breathing Earth that we walk upon, and know that when you do so, you are standing for all life, and for all the amazing beings whom share this Earth Walk with us.

With Courage,

Dear Boulder County Commissioners,

We just realized that the county's fracking moratorium is scheduled to end on Dec. 31. We are writing to encourage/plead with/beg you to extend the moratorium until 2018. Such an extension is reasonable because there is still too much we don't know about the health and environmental impacts of fracking due to the toxic substances that are pumped into the ground to release the trapped gas and oil. It is ominous that the oil and gas companies won't divulge what some of the liquids are.

We suggest you follow the common-sense guidelines proposed by environmental health researchers at the University of Pennsylvania and Harvard's School of Public Health as well as many other public health organizations, to wit: Baseline air and water should be collected at sites before drilling and extraction begins, then during extraction and again after it is completed. This should be done over several years for a few trial wells. If no negative consequences are found to the environment or to people's health, then drilling could be expanded. After all, the subterranean oil and gas isn't going to go anywhere and drillers should be happy to cooperate with such reasonable, scientific verification. New York state isn't allowing fracking until a state department of health study on the pros and cons of fracking is completed.

Boulder County should also adopt a "Better safe than sorry" policy on fracking and to do so, the moratorium needs to be extended for several years.

Boulder County Commissioners

Thank you for the unanimous decision made in June 2013 to enact a moratorium on oil and gas exploration in Boulder County. Your vote was greatly appreciated and crucial to the protection our community.

Now, the moratorium must be extended until we are assured that our communities and the environment are protected. We request that this moratorium be extended at least until June 2018 when: (1) health studies will provide data as to the safety of extraction activities next to homes, schools and businesses; (2) county or statewide regulations are in place to adequately protect our land, air, water and our communities; and (3) a monitoring system that is not based on self-reporting by oil and gas industry is ready to launch.

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Please do everything possible to extend the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County. So much more bad news about fracking has come to light since the moratorium was implemented. If lifted, even briefly, we lose ground. Every new mineral rights sale makes it that much harder to ensure that nothing is drilled in proximity to homes, schools, parks and agricultural areas. At a minimum, extending the moratorium until the state task force submits their recommendations will give all parties time to further assess the risks and remedies.

Dear Boulder County Commissioners,

As a citizen of Boulder County, I encourage you to please extend our county's hydraulic-fracturing moratorium until we all know for certainty whether emissions and leaks associated with these wells are NOT harmful to the health of Boulder County workers and residents. I'm frustrated that we must prove that something is NOT harmful rather than proving that it is, but unfortunately that is the world we live in. For the sake of Boulder County citizens now and in the future, please take your time to learn from the most reputable science available and then make the most informed decision possible once you've done so. It is my understanding that the science is unsettled and please do not rush this decision!

Thank you for all your service and again please do not rush this decision.

All my best,

Dear commissioners,

My name is Emily Harms. I am 23 years old and have been living in Boulder for 2 years. I work at Fate Brewery, and am working on renewing my cosmetology license so I can continue my artistic work as a hairstylist full time. I spend my free time doing yoga, hiking, reading, and, recently, volunteering to spread awareness about an issue that affects all three of you, and myself deeply.

Within the last year, I have gone through powerful transformation and I could not have done so without the kindness, compassion, and undying support of my community. Nature has also been an unforgettable part of my healing. I am so blessed to be surrounded by such beauty. We all are. I do not take for granted the majestic mountains right in our backyard, the flowing Boulder creek, nor the many smiling faces I encounter day to day in this precious place I call home. I am writing to you coming from a place of gratitude, and asking the three of you with all of my heart, that you do everything in your power to protect the well being of myself, my community, and this breathtaking section of earth.

Please extend the moratorium on fracking for 3 more years. We need to keep our land and ourselves healthy and thriving, and there is no room for the irreversible, destructive act of fracking in our county. In our state, nation, world ~ either. But it all starts right here. I am asking that you extend this ban to promote the general welfare and secure our Blessings of Liberty.

With love and thanks,

Emily Harms

Greetings,

In the absence of technical health and environmental affects from fracking, approving the process in the vicinity of our homes is more than wrong. I can think of no city that decided to build a nuclear power plant in town when presented with no long term health or environmental impact studies. If you were to pick any other industrial process known to man, a thorough review of it's affects on the people would not only be a good practice, it would be expected.

Not only are you separating yourself from your constituency by allowing fracking to continue, you are jeopardizing our health. This is not to be taken lightly, and the long term ramifications of this decision could negatively affect large swathes of your constituency.

For our health, for our land, and for your integrity, please extend the moratorium on fracking until we can conclusively determine the potential risks of fracking.

Thank you,
Josh

Dear Commissioners,

Please extend the moratorium on Fracking.

We need to learn more and protect ourselves from the methods that are being used now for fracking. I believe water is such a problem in Colorado that it should be kept for crop irrigation and drinking. Fracking is not sustainable. We will be poisoned and have no water for our growing population. Solar and wind power is where our energy should come from.

Please extend the moratorium.

Please extend the current moratorium on oil and gas development in unincorporated Boulder County.

I find the following facts and studies extremely disturbing:

- The natural gas industry is the only industry in the U.S. that has special exemption from The Safe Drinking Water Act, The Clean Water Act, The Clean Air Act, and the Superfund Act.
- A study conducted by the Colorado School of Public Health on Colorado's Western Slope found that citizens who live within a half-mile of fracking wells are 66% more likely to have cancer.
- Children who live or go to school near fracked wells have high asthma rates, bloody noses and bowels.

Dear Commissioners,

We know WATER used in fracking is not renewable.
There is renewable energy.

We know it is forever contaminated. And is there such a thing as safe storage either above or below ground?

Another consideration: States to our south and west will have to look to Colorado for further supply of water.

Our first priority must be FOR people and environment.

Dear Boulder County Commissioners,
When I first heard about hydraulic fracturing to extract gas and oil, I felt secure in my belief that everyone would have an endless supply of natural gas and oil. In the past few years I've learned fracking certainly is, or is a highly suspect source of earthquakes, contaminated ground water, air pollution, noise pollution, unsightliness, and devaluation of real estate. So I'm pleased the commissioners are willing to listen to the concerns, and experiences, of Boulder County residents. Hopefully, as a result of listening to us the Commissioners will extend and amend the current moratorium with increased restrictions on oil and gas drilling, that include O&G companies paying damages for destroyed homes, infrastructure, contamination of air and water; and loss of real estate values.

My greatest hope, for myself a 20+ year BoCo resident, real estate owner, lover of nature; and, all residents who marvel in our County's beauty: is for a complete and total ban on Oil and Gas drilling in both incorporated and unincorporated Boulder County.

I see no reason why the Commissioners should support O&G fracking that devastates the environment and reduces our finite water supply on Earth, by permanently polluting millions, perhaps billions of gallons of potable water via contamination with toxic chemicals. Wouldn't it be more prudent for the County to support renewal energies such as solar electric? Please consider Boulder County's national reputation as a "Healthy" place to live, "Heal" and expand one's spiritual consciousness? Our beloved home could easily become one of the most unhealthy places to live. What effect would this have on housing prices and businesses that currently thrive here? Also, is it not strangely incongruent that a geographical area with a demographic of 68% college educated people would allow it's home to be ruined.

It is apparent to me that allowing fracking for oil or gas in any of Boulder County will ruin our County's beauty, healthy environment, business community, real estate values, wildlife, and change our demographic from a highly educated, caring, and conscious population; to one dominated by people who prefer to numb-out on alcohol, drugs and TV. Let's keep our current demographic and mitigate the spread of the latter category.

Commissioners,

Did you see the new UN report on climate change?

The report warns that "even with adaptation, warming by the end of the 21st century will lead to high to very high risk of severe, widespread, and irreversible impacts globally."

The report recommends allocating finances to encourage people and governments to come up with new ideas to tackle climate change. IPCC vice chair Jean-Pascal van Ypersele wrote on Twitter that "ordinary people" can make choices that reduce climate change, "but policymakers have responsibility to facilitate."

Please listen to the people of Boulder. We want to be leaders in policy-making that facilitates meaningful change. Extending the moratorium is a way to show big energy companies that they cannot pillage people in their homes in the name of fossil fuel addiction. Whatever we can do to mitigate the malignant power oil companies have is a step in the right direction!

Dear Cindy, Elise, and Deb,

As a member of the Steering Committee of Our Longmont and a resident of Boulder County, I urge you to stand firm in your commitment to keep fracking out of Boulder County by extending the current ban for at least three years. Since you are likely to be deluged by comments and speakers at your upcoming hearing on the issue, I will keep my words here to a minimum.

The longer we continue to challenge the current state pre-emption laws, the safer we citizens will be from the still unknown long-term effects to air and water from the new hydraulic fracturing technologies--not to mention the threat of ecological disasters resulting from climate change and water scarcity. It's time to move on to renewables. If not leading on this from Boulder County, then from where? That the crux of the matter.

It's time for Boulder County to live up to its reputation as a progressive community ahead of its time and committed to a sustainable future. The voters have your back on this one!

Dear Commissioners, thanks you for taking the time to read my comments. I am a college faculty member that studies the ecology of life and the effects of human degradation of natural habitats. Almost all of us in Boulder County use natural gas in our homes to heat them during the winter and thus realize our current dependence. However, the actions and lack of regulation in the fracking industry need to be addressed before any consideration of lifting a moratorium in Boulder County. A recent study by Dr. David Carpenter, director of the Institute of health and Environment at of Albany-State University found eight poisonous chemicals near wells in Arkansas, Colorado, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Wyoming that far exceeded federal limits known to severely affect the brain and the upper-respiratory systems. Benzene at one site was five orders of magnitude above the federal limits. This has been documented to cause cognitive difficulties, asthmatic episodes and nose polyps. Carpenter concludes that these environmental conditions will lead to significant cancer increases in fracking areas that will be visible 10-15 years from now.

See excerpts of the study at:

<http://www.usnews.com/news/articles/2014/10/30/toxic-chemicals-and-carcinogens-skyrocket-near-fracking-sites-study-says>

As Boulder County Commissioners you are charged with the health and safety of the residence in Boulder County and evidence that has mounted around the significantly negative health effects of fracking to the citizens of Boulder County and Colorado in general, indicates that the gas and oil industry has no intent to frack safely or has any concerns about the human health costs in their rush to make money. They do not even take precautions to protect the health of their oil field workers during the fracking process.

It is because of these reasons that I urge you to keep the moratorium in place until the oil and gas industry is properly regulated by our state and federal governments. As is, the health costs alone to Colorado residents at the current level of fracking is certain to be devastating to the Colorado economy and the health and well-being of its citizens. It is the exact role of government to protect citizens against the wanton destruction and pollution caused by unethical companies that pay little to no costs for the damages and public health effects that they leave behind.

I thank you for your time and consideration.

Boulder County Commissioners

Thank you for the unanimous decision made in June 2013 to enact a moratorium on oil and gas exploration in Boulder County. Your vote was greatly appreciated and crucial to the protection our community.

Now, the moratorium must be extended until we are assured that our communities and the environment are protected. We request that this moratorium be extended at least until June 2018 when: (1) health studies will provide data as to the safety of extraction activities next to homes, schools and businesses; (2) county or statewide regulations are in place to adequately protect our land, air, water and our communities; and (3) a monitoring system that is not based on self-reporting by oil and gas industry is ready to launch.

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Sincerely,

Dear commissioners,

I urge you to consider extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County for another 3 years. We still do not have data that proves fracking is 100% safe for our air and water supply both in the short term and long term.

We should not be allowing activities that threaten the health of our community (a community that arguably values its health more than any other other community in the US). Unlike other communities, the people of Boulder are overwhelmingly opposed to fracking. As our representatives, you have the power to take bold action to uphold the will of the people you serve.

Thank you for your hard work and dedication to a clean and safe Boulder community.

Hi Commissioners,

Please vote to extend the fracking moratorium in our County. Some things come and go, but the magnificence of the land of Boulder County will remain long after our poor voices are silenced. Please stand up for what is right and true - if the laws don't support what's right, then I believe they need to be changed.

Thank you for your work.

Dear Boulder County Commissioners:

As a concerned Boulder County resident I am writing to urge once again that you make the right decision for the future of our property, prosperity, peace, and children. We are a special place and if we bring this highly dangerous and toxic practice to our community, the effects will not be easily reversible and the ultimate answer will be in banning this somewhere down the line. Doing it now is the only thing that will make you a hero. Doing it later will be too little too late and you all know this.

I am currently in West Texas breathing the results of Fracking. I cannot even imagine Boulder would be the same place after 10 year of this. I know you are under a lot of pressure and feel you have almost no choice, but you do. We always have a choice. please make the right one for you and us and the future of our beautiful Boulder.

I strongly urge you to extend the Moratorium for 3 more years. This way the county cannot be sued and we can continue to live our lives in the way we have grown to love: ie. biking, hiking, playing in the dirt and drinking our own tap water. We still have the beautiful Boulder Creek. Here in West Texas "Rivers" are completely dry and whole towns here, just like in Colorado no longer have safe drinking water, relying on MORE TRUCKS to bring plastic water bottles for survival.

Thank you for your time. Thank you for your service and love of Boulder County.

I am a home owner at 3260 47th street apt 212 in Boulder, CO.

Dear Commissioners,

I strongly urge you to extend the moratorium against fracking for at least 3 years, preferably 5 years. Not only are health studies still ongoing, the conclusions aren't in yet. But the initial results indicate that emissions are significantly higher than reported by industry. Also, the state has not hired sufficient inspectors for the thousands and thousands of wells. There is no way that these wells can be declared safe for human health.

Please protect Boulder County and extend the moratorium.

Dear Boulder County,

In my early twenties, my boyfriend and I packed up our car and began a road trip around the country, in search of the perfect place to live. We drove into Boulder late one night and awoke the next morning to find ourselves surrounded by the splendor of the Front Range. We knew that our search for a home had come to an end, and we have been living happily in Boulder county ever since.

We are getting married next summer. We've begun looking into buying a house. There are so many reasons that we love Boulder county, and ever since that first day when we fell in love with Boulder, there has not been a doubt in my mind that this is the place where I want to put down roots and raise my family.

I love that Boulder is a place that supports my healthy lifestyle. People in Boulder are active and take care of themselves. I have never lived anywhere that is so full of vibrant, healthy people who truly care about their environment, as well as the health and safety of their families and neighbors.

It is as if people in Boulder understand that the way we treat our environment is linked to the way we treat ourselves and our own bodies. Unlike other places in the country, Boulder celebrates its beautiful open space, fresh air and clean water.

The possibility of fracking in my backyard is the one thing that gives me serious doubt about staying in Boulder county. I am afraid to buy a house in an area that may be fracked anytime in the near future.

As a citizen of Boulder county, I am asking you to extend the moratorium, and to continue to protect Boulder from fracking in all other ways within your power. I hope that Boulder officials will uphold its longstanding and unique tradition of respect for the health and safety of its environment and residents, as they have done throughout the history of this city and county. Please exercise your power to keep Boulder safe from fracking, so that I can make the choice to stay here and start a family.

Thank you,

Caitlin Vincek

Boulder County Commissioners

Thank you for the unanimous decision made in June 2013 to enact a moratorium on oil and gas exploration in Boulder County. Your vote was greatly appreciated and crucial to the protection our community.

Now, the moratorium must be extended until we are assured that our communities and the environment are protected. We request that this moratorium be extended at least until June 2018 when: (1) health studies will provide data as to the safety of extraction activities next to homes, schools and businesses; (2) county or statewide regulations are in place to adequately protect our land, air, water and our communities; and (3) a monitoring system that is not based on self-reporting by oil and gas industry is ready to launch.

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Sincerely,

Dr. Cosima Krueger-Cunningham

Okay, this is not Rocket Science, it's pretty simple. Water is the MOST IMPORTANT THING WE NEED to live. No water, no food, right? NO WATER, NO LIFE, actually. And fracking destroys the quality of our water, and reduces the quantity of drinkable water we have. It's pretty stupid of humans to be poisoning the very substance they need to live, in order to extract a substance that is toxic for us. Let's end this idiotic and self-destructive practice NOW!! Our children's children will thank us.

Hello Boulder County Commissioners and Staff,
Thank you for scheduling the Nov. 10th meeting to receive public input comments about whether to extend the moratorium on oil & gas development in Boulder County. With this email, please find attached for your consideration three short write ups about scientific research studies currently underway which are relevant to your decision. (Summaries are 1 ½ 2 ½ and 5 ½ pages long).

The research studies are investigating the air emissions, water quality and health impacts of oil and natural gas development in Boulder County. The studies we have summarized have the following time frames:

- National Science Foundation's (NSF) $12 million Sustainability Research Network (SRN) AirWaterGas study with 29 researchers and 9 research teams.
-- Timing: final results due at the end of 2017.
- FRAPPE Study (Front Range Air Pollution and Photochemistry Experiment) in partnership with NASA, NCAR, NOAA and the State of Colorado with 200 researchers.
-- Timing: Findings expected through 2018 and beyond.
- Colorado State University (CSU) is conducting two air quality studies, one on oil and gas pollutant emissions in the Northern Front Range, and and air emissions from natural gas well drilling and completion operations in Garfield County.
-- Timing: Northern Front Range study will publish results in 2016 and 2015 for the Garfield County research, respectively.

Recommendation

Given that these four major studies are underway with results coming in over the next three years, we believe the prudent response is to continue the moratorium until all research studies are complete. In addition, we believe that you and the public will want a reasonable amount of time to analyze the results of the research and to be able to base your decision on the known science at the time. We recommend that the moratorium on oil & gas development in Boulder County be extended till June of 2018.

Protocol

For each of the three write up attached, we conducted a phone interview with the Principal Investigator (PI) of the study, provided the written summary to the PI for review and fact-checking, and received approval from the research team for the summary's accuracy in the description of the study and methodology, timeframe and intended results. I personally conducted the phone calls with the researchers and wrote the summaries. I did this as a concerned citizen and mother of two teenage daughters. No organization paid me for my time on this effort.

I did not produce a summary of the Boulder County Dept. of Health study with CU Boulder and the Institute of Arctic and Alpine Research (INSTAAR) knowing that Pam Milmoie will be presenting this research during the Nov. 10 public meeting.

Thank you for consideration of these research summaries as they underscore the importance of extending the moratorium until we know more about the air, water and health impacts of natural gas and oil development.

Dear County Commissioners,

As a constituent and resident of Boulder County in Longmont, CO., I beseech you to extend the oil and gas drilling moratorium for 5 more years so that the health and environmental issues can be fully studied without the danger of the industry continuing to bully the citizens of Boulder County and the State of Colorado. I invite you to take a drive on County Line Road on the edge of Longmont and there you will see what the Oil and Gas industry intends to do to us if they get the go ahead. We the People have the right to stop Boulder County from turning into an industrial wasteland that you will see at the edge of Longmont, teething at the bit to destroy our way of life, our health, our air, our water and last, but not least, our property values. Young families with babies and young children are the victims in this fight...young families often can only afford to rent or buy a house in Weld County. I know many young women with young children who can smell the fumes (that have caused nosebleeds and sickness in some people) and are having their sleep disturbed by the light and noise produced by fracking wells. Please show us that you care more about us, the citizens, than Big Oil that are often out of state and country giant corporations. THEY DON'T CARE ABOUT US.

Please keep in mind that at a meeting I attended in Longmont, the Colorado Oil and Gas Conservation Commission admitted, on record, and I quote one member saying, "When the well pads move in, property values go down; when they leave, they go up." My question is, "When do they ever leave and what degradation and contamination do they leave behind?" Our home is our only major investment and we are too old to wait for them to leave. We Longmonters stood up to them and I urge you to do so too. I used to live in Boulder...Boulder is not safe either.

PLEASE DO NOT ALLOW ANY MORE OF THIS EXTREME AND UGLY INDUSTRIAL CONTAMINATION TO OCCUR IN OUR BEAUTIFUL COUNTY THAT RELIES ON TOURISM FOR THE PROFITS OF THE FEW WHO DON'T EVEN REMOTELY CARE ABOUT COLORADO AND ITS CITIZENS.

We can't be present at the meeting on November 10,2014, but we want our voices to be heard loud and clear. Thank you.

Dear Boulder Commissioners:

Please oh please extend the moratorium at least 3 more years. There is so much at stake, from the development of renewables to the protection of our air and water. You are perhaps the only county in the state that can do with the clear support of its voters.

Respectfully,

Honorable Boulder County Commissioners,

You made the courageous and correct decision to enact a moratorium on oil and gas exploration in Boulder County in 2013. By taking this action, you took full responsibility for your commitment to protect our county - human and non-human residents as well as the county lands, air and water - from known hazards as well as extraction procedures that have yet-to-be-definitely-proven-safe .

Please extend and enforce this moratorium on exploration and extraction practices that involve hydraulic fracturing in Boulder County until adequate safeguards are in place to guarantee protection of our land, water, and public health.

Since your 2013 action, there have been enough reports of environmental disruptions and toxic contamination in CO and nearby states that have undergone hydraulic fracking to give any thoughtful person sufficient reason to continue pressing the pause button and continue the present moratorium.

Unlike everyone east of us, we are lucky enough to be "first users" of Boulder's wonderful water. We don't want to destroy that incredible resource through drilling for natural gas which uses and potentially irreversibly contaminates tremendous amounts of water.

I have provided just a few reports below, from reputable sources, for you to consider when deciding whether or not to lift Boulder County's oil and gas moratorium.

With thanks and highest regard,
Julie Zahniser

This summer it was reported in the Washington Post that over a fifteen-month period from 2010 to 2011, there were 850 earthquakes in Oklahoma – compared to just six in the entire period from 2000 to 2008. Through May of this year, Oklahoma had already experienced 145 earthquakes of magnitude 3.0 or higher – an all-time record.

The journal Science found what it called a clear link between wastewater wells and earthquakes in Oklahoma.

Journal Endocrinology - December 2013 report of study in Garfield County, CO - data suggest that natural gas drilling operations may result in elevated endocrine-disrupting chemical activity in surface and ground water.

Cornell University engineering professor Anthony Ingraffea, has testified that "it's impossible to drill and cement a well that will never leak."

Re: Whether Temporary Moratorium Should Be Extended

While my husband and I will grant that natural gas is preferable to coal and appears to be an alternative to the harm caused to the environment by coal burning gases, we strongly believe that the moratorium to fracking should be extended indefinitely in Boulder County.

The communities in Boulder County should have the right to choose the type of environment we live in and thought we had bought to live in when originally purchased. Homes in the county are priced higher than other communities for our proximity to the beauty of the mountains, and the recreational opportunities it affords. Fracking near our properties does and will affect the value. We believe that this is taking of property (value) contrary to our constitutional rights.

Not only are we looking at the health issues that have not been resolved either way (please note recent scientific concerns with the pollution and infant deaths in Vernal, Utah which need to be researched to see if due to heavy oil and gas drilling in this area), but water usage that would deplete that needed for irrigation and human consumption. Home development continues to increase substantially, requiring more need for water. This development also will increase the heavy traffic on our roads as would oil and gas projects.

Don't let fracking damage the environment of Boulder County. Oil and gas companies have shown many times over that they cannot and won't adequately regulate themselves.

Thank you for your consideration of these issues.

Regards,

Charles DuScha and Sally Phillips

Dear Boulder County Commissioners,

I am writing you now to voice my position against fracking in Boulder County.

It seems clear to me that the fracking is not supported by the majority of Boulder citizen.

Boulder tends to attract a certain type of person. Often this means health conscious, environmentally conscious, fairly well informed, liberal, educated. That being said I believe it is our duty to act responsibly and be a good example. If we allow fracking in Boulder County we will not be doing our duty to ourselves, to the environment, to this country , and for the planet.

Please make the right choice and extend this moratorium. If you do not you will find me alined with many other Boulderites against you and against your position as a representative of Boulder.

I hope you make the right choice and represent your constituents well.

Thank you
Jesse Spiegel

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

The most direct message I can share with you today is this: NO FRACKING WAY DO I SUPPORT FRACKING IN COLORADO!!! Please follow the requests of your constituents to EXTEND THE MORATORIUM ON FRACKING IN BOULDER COUNTY FOR AT LEAST ANOTHER 3 YEARS.

We have seen the harmful impacts that fracking has on our neighboring communities: it is bad for health, lowers property values and contaminates air and water.

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years.

THANK YOU !

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Oil & gas companies are spending thousands of dollars on public relations to imply that they are pro-environment, but in reality they ruin our water supply and pollute our air and are unfairly exempt from clean air & water regulations. They tout the many jobs they create, yet refuse to acknowledge that those jobs are temporary. When they have extracted all they can from our area, they are gone. The polluted air, fouled water, dusty access roads and increased health care costs will remain.

Boulder County should not allow them to forever contaminate our environment for their short-term profits. We have no clean water to spare.

Hi there!

I am writing to ask you to please extend the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County. There is so much information out there on the dangers of fracking. It is SO important that we protect this beautiful county and it's incredible people. As Boulder is an icon of alternative-thinking and environmental consciousness in this country, it would be a tragedy to allow fracking to happen here. Thank you for your time and consideration. I urge you to continue to protect the health and safety of this land and its people.

Sincerely,
Rebecca Wasserman

Hi there -

I understand that this is where I can inquire about the status of fracking in Boulder county.

I am a resident of Louisville, CO and I am passionately against fracking.

I would like to do whatever I can to protest fracking in our community - and others.

I cannot understand the priorities of those who knowingly would poison ourselves and our children for oil. It is not only unconscionable morally, it makes no sense financially. Those without conscience and who are money motivated should take note that real estate real estate in CherynobyI probably isn't worth much.

So, besides voting accordingly, is there anything else a very concerned citizen can do?

Many thanks,

Jen Robarge

Boulder County Commissioners

Thank you for the unanimous decision made in June 2013 to enact a moratorium on oil and gas exploration in Boulder County. Your vote was greatly appreciated and crucial to the protection our community.

Now, the moratorium must be extended until we are assured that our communities and the environment are protected. We request that this moratorium be extended at least until June 2018 when: (1) health studies will provide data as to the safety of extraction activities next to homes, schools and businesses; (2) county or statewide regulations are in place to adequately protect our land, air, water and our communities; and (3) a monitoring system that is not based on self-reporting by oil and gas industry is ready to launch.

The tactics and the money involved in pushing this fracking agenda forward tell me something is afoot here - please dont desert your public now. Extend for safety!

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Sincerely,

To extend the moratorium on oil and gas exploration in Boulder County is selfish and self serving if I do not do all I can to conserve and ration my usage of oil and gas. This is everyone's problem and up to everyone to resolve. If you could just be open to looking at the big picture by reading Great Waves of Change by going here for the free ebook www.greatwavesofchange.org you will see why I say that just signing this petition does little good and in the long run does not help the matter but just cause more conflict and delay in the race to save humanity.

Hello,

My name is Matt Condon and I am a resident of Boulder County. I have done my best to become informed about Fracking and all that goes with it. I applied to be on the Governor's blue ribbon commission, but was not chosen. I am not an extremist or an anti-fracking fanatic, but I firmly believe that oil and gas drilling is a runaway train at the moment, and that if we do not do something proactive and provocative, we will wind up trying to clean up the mess of the oil and gas industry after they have walked away. This clean-up may not even be possible, given that the water may not be able to be reclaimed, and the methane will already be in the atmosphere.

There are many potential solutions for a clean-energy future, and we must be working toward these sustainable solutions. At the moment, however, the least we can do...is put a halt to fracking in our county. Please vote to extend the moratorium in Boulder County.

Thank you,

Matt Condon

Dear Commissioners of Boulder County,
As a voting member of this county and as a concerned citizen I urge and actually demand you extend the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

Until more is known through independent studies about the impact that this profit driven industry actually has on our water, air and environmental quality you CANNOT in good conscience let this move forward.

We, the citizens you are sworn to represent stood up last year to let you know our voice. It has not changed - EXTEND THE MORATORIUM ON FRACKING IN BOULDER COUNTY!

Dear County Commissioners,

Please extend the fracking moratorium.

Here are my questions that remain and concerns unanswered about fracking.

If Colorado has the strictest fracking regulations in the nation:

- Why are the fracking companies allowed to spread their drilling mud around the drill site?
- Is the water tested around all drill sites before drilling and during drilling and fracking operations?
- What is in fracking fluids? (Benzene, toluene, ethylbenzene and xylene were all found near drilling sites in Queensland, etc.)
- What are the health effects of fracking fluids and gasses released by the wells? (Reports of cancer, Leukemia, nausea, insomnia, headaches, dizziness, convulsions, coma, chromosomal aberrations, and anemia can be caused from long term exposure to benzene alone.)
- What percentage of the fracking fluid is recycled? (Perhaps only 5%)
- Where does the rest of that fluid end up? Is it allowed to enter our wastewater treatment facilities that are unequipped to handle it or injected underground to end up where later on?
- Where do the sometimes radioactive fluid wastes and filters end up? Are they hidden in an abandoned building as found in another state, added to our landfills, or spread over public lands near the well?
- Since Colorado is an arid state with a long history of water rights battles, who has to give up the million plus gallons of water to frack each well when we know that that water will not be useable again? (250 billion gallons of fresh water used in U.S. in 2012 and turned into carcinogenic waste water <http://thinkprogress.org/climate/2013/10/04/2731921/fracking-billion-gallons-wastewater/>)
- Since fracking fluid under pressure is designed to split rocks, does it not also crack concrete casings that are meant to seal the drill shaft and well from leakage into water sources and surface air?
- Is it even possible to drill a well that will not leak?
- What can happen when the well leaks?
(<http://thinkprogress.org/climate/2014/09/15/3567369/fracking-water-contamination-casing/> )
- When earthquakes happen or other natural earth shifts occur, what will happen to the "sealed" wells?
- Are all wells required to be tested regularly for leakage of gases (mostly methane) during and after the well's active use? (Cornell Univ. study in 2011 found leakage of 2.2-3.9% of produced gas per well. Sometimes the leakage was as high as 8%) (Methane gas has 105 times more global warming effect per pound than does CO2.)

- How damaging to air quality is flaring?
- Do the fracking companies post a bond to repair any damage to land, air, human health and wildlife from their well activity or are the taxpayers expected pick up that tab?
- Is natural gas really a "cleaner" form of energy than coal? (Not according to: <http://www.napalmcreek.com/global-warming.php> )
- What recourse does a homeowner have when the value of their property drops significantly because fracking began in their neighborhood?

Until all these concerns are addressed, I urge the Boulder County Commissioners to vote to extend the fracking moratorium.

Sincerely,

Penny Dumas & Jeffrey Dumas

Boulder County Commissioners

Thank you for the unanimous decision made in June 2013 to enact a moratorium on oil and gas exploration in Boulder County. Your vote was greatly appreciated and crucial to the protection our community.

Now, the moratorium must be extended until we are assured that our communities and the environment are protected. We request that this moratorium be extended at least until June 2018 when: (1) health studies will provide data as to the safety of extraction activities next to homes, schools and businesses; (2) county or statewide regulations are in place to adequately protect our land, air, water and our communities; and (3) a monitoring system that is not based on self-reporting by oil and gas industry is ready to launch.

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Sincerely,

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

We have seen the harmful impacts that fracking has on our neighboring communities: it is bad for health, lowers property values and contaminates air and water.

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Sincerely,

I strongly recommend that you vote to extend the moratorium until we are assured that our communities and the environment are adequately protected. We request that this moratorium be extended for at least one full year.

I want to know three important facts:

- (1) do health studies provide data that proves this type of exploration and extraction is safe next to homes, schools and businesses;
- (2) are county or statewide regulations in place to adequately protect our land, air, water and our communities; and
- (3) do we have a monitoring system that is not based on self-reporting by oil and gas industry

Boulder County Commissioners

Thank you for the unanimous decision made in June 2013 to enact a moratorium on oil and gas exploration in Boulder County. Your vote was greatly appreciated and crucial to the protection our community.

Now, the moratorium must be extended until we are assured that our communities and the environment are protected. We request that this moratorium be extended at least until June 2018 when: (1) health studies will provide data as to the safety of extraction activities next to homes, schools and businesses; (2) county or statewide regulations are in place to adequately protect our land, air, water and our communities; and (3) a monitoring system that is not based on self-reporting by oil and gas industry is ready to launch.

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Sincerely,

Mr. William Atkison

Boulder County Commissioners

Thank you for the unanimous decision made in June 2013 to enact a moratorium on oil and gas exploration in Boulder County. Your vote was greatly appreciated and crucial to the protection our community.

Now, the moratorium must be extended until we are assured that our communities and the environment are protected. We request that this moratorium be extended at least until June 2018 when: (1) health studies will provide data as to the safety of extraction activities next to homes, schools and businesses; (2) county or statewide regulations are in place to adequately protect our land, air, water and our communities; and (3) a monitoring system that is not based on self-reporting by oil and gas industry is ready to launch.

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Sincerely,

Dr. Paul Shankman

Your constituents, who have elected you to serve, overwhelmingly want every possible protection from this toxic industrial threat that has dangerously crept into close proximity to Colorado's residential communities at the expense of great risk to our air quality, water quality, property values, health and safety of children and our way of life. It is incumbent upon you to serve your constituents, not the greedy oil and gas profiteers, not the Colorado Democratic Party's so-called leadership that is so blatantly subservient to the oil and gas industry. Extend the moratorium.

Boulder County Commissioners

Thank you for the unanimous decision made in June 2013 to enact a moratorium on oil and gas exploration in Boulder County. Your vote was greatly appreciated and crucial to the protection our community.

Now, the moratorium must be extended until we are assured that our communities and the environment are protected. We request that this moratorium be extended at least until June 2018 when: (1) health studies will provide data as to the safety of extraction activities next to homes, schools and businesses; (2) county or statewide regulations are in place to adequately protect our land, air, water and our communities; and (3) a monitoring system that is not based on self-reporting by oil and gas industry is ready to launch.

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Sincerely,

Ms. Judy Falco

Dear Boulder County Commissioners,

This is a supplement in support of my statement yesterday in which I strongly urged you to extend the moratorium on fracking in Boulder for at least three more years.

The precautionary principle was irresponsibly abandoned under pressure from the oil and gas industry at the outset of federal approval of fracking early in the Bush-Cheney administration when legislation was passed to exempt fracking from the federal Clean Air Act, Clean Water Act, and other federal statutes enacted to protect our health and the environment. Fortunately, at least in Boulder, wiser heads recognized this principle and prevailed, enacting a moratorium.

The precautionary principle has further been actively rejected by the oil and gas industry because they have consistently opposed measures to list chemicals and the amounts of such chemicals actually used, and have opposed measures to test, investigate, and report through competent independent experts whether enhanced fracking is safe for human health and the environment. Their opposition is a red flag suggesting that they know their operations are harmful to health, and that they are much more concerned about their bottom line.

Thank you for your consideration.

Dear County Commissioners,

Please extend the oil and gas moratorium to protect our air, water, open spaces, and public health from fracking operations. Please stand up for the health of our kids. I'm concerned that expanding fracking and oil and gas development in the county will increase the damaging effects of ozone my kids' health. Until the state or county can provide adequate health protections for this and other health concerns, we should continue the moratorium.

Thank you for your consideration.

Boulder County Commissioners

Thank you for the unanimous decision made in June 2013 to enact a moratorium on oil and gas exploration in Boulder County. Your vote was greatly appreciated and crucial to the protection our community.

Now, the moratorium must be extended until we are assured that our communities and the environment are protected. We request that this moratorium be extended at least until June 2018 when: (1) health studies will provide data as to the safety of extraction activities next to homes, schools and businesses; (2) county or statewide regulations are in place to adequately protect our land, air, water and our communities; and (3) a monitoring system that is not based on self-reporting by oil and gas industry is ready to launch.

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Sincerely,

Mr. Jon Munzel

As we have no valid data that the Fracking liquid is safe, the right action is to extend the Moratorium.

Thank you for your thoughtful attention to this extremely important matter. As Boulder is a Leader in many innovative areas nation wide, we will be setting a standard for other communities around the country. Let's do our best to set the standard high for the health and beauty of our environment and all who live and work in our wonderful community. Thank you!

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Boulder County Commissioners

Thank you for the unanimous decision made in June 2013 to enact a moratorium on oil and gas exploration in Boulder County. Your vote was greatly appreciated and crucial to the protection our community.

I look to Boulder County for leadership in the fracking issue. Your decisions have been inspiring to help us here in Fort Collins to help with our moratorium regarding fracking. Thank you for your efforts. Now, the moratorium must be extended until we are assured that our communities and the environment are protected. We request that this moratorium be extended at least until June 2018 when: (1) health studies will provide data as to the safety of extraction activities next to homes, schools and businesses; (2) county or statewide regulations are in place to adequately protect our land, air, water and our communities; and (3) a monitoring system that is not based on self-reporting by oil and gas industry is ready to launch.

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Sincerely,

Mr. Bill Jenkins

Dear Commissioners:

It's a terrible time to be digging wells, with the price of oil so low, and the effects of fracking still not studied adequately.

I urge you to continue the moratorium for a three-year period during which these things can be studied properly.

Thank you,

David Tresemer

The California Water Board just found arsenic and thallium, the toxic element found in rat poison and nitrates in the water supply near the fracking sites in Central California.

Leukemia and Spina Bifida, especially in fetus' have also been linked to people living near fracking sites. This has been documented repeatedly.

If our right to clean air and water is denied because you feel obligated to listen to the lawyers that tell you the state will sue, we will feel obligated to protest in turn and sue the legislators that have failed to protect the people that elected them! This has got to stop. Do you support the State or do you support the people that expect your protection?

in light of the fact that frackers have intentionally injected poisonous water into the california aquifers, it is profoundly important that we extend the fracking ban for at least three years. i love this state, as we all do, and cannot abide yet another county falling to the drills and noise, poisonous air, dead pieces of soil and toxins injected deep into the earth. it is a blasphemy against nature and health.

We request that this moratorium be extended at least until June 2018 when: (1) health studies will provide data as to the safety of extraction activities next to homes, schools and businesses; (2) county or statewide regulations are in place to adequately protect our land, air, water and our communities; and (3) a monitoring system that is not based on self-reporting by oil and gas industry is ready to launch.

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Dear Boulder County Commissioners,

I strongly urge you to extend the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County. As a lawyer, in the past I represented numerous people injured by toxic chemical exposures in Texas. In my experience it is rather routine for industry to deny that its chemicals could cause injury, even in clear-cut cases of cause and effect.

Enhanced fracking ("fracking") as practiced only in recent years in Colorado, involves a greatly increased use of water, pressure, and chemicals. As a technology, enhanced fracking has never been adequately tested for safety or health effects on humans or the environment, in Colorado or elsewhere. It is a clear and unacceptable violation of the precautionary principle for COGA to have approved and industry to have begun enhanced fracking without such testing. Moreover, there have been many case histories suggesting serious annoyance, health consequences, and large externalized costs caused by fracking---just recently a reported marked increase in dead babies in Utah and possibly in Glenwood Springs, Colorado in areas where extensive fracking is under way. These reports, while not definitive, should be thoroughly investigated. In addition thorough investigations of the health and other effects of fracking should be conducted by competent independent parties, and a determination made as to any and all harmful consequences of fracking to health, the environment, and the projected externalized costs. Unless the health and safety of the workers, school students, and residents affected by fracking operations, as well as sustainable costs, can be assured, fracking should not be allowed to proceed in Boulder County (or anywhere else). If Boulder does not extend the moratorium, it will have rejected the precautionary principle and will be indulging in an irresponsible disregard of human and environmental health and safety concerns.

Attached is a landmark study published in the American Journal of Industrial Medicine: "But They are Not Thresholds: A Critical Analysis of the Documentation of Threshold Limit Values" by Roach and Rappaport (1990). This meta-study showed that the so-called "safe" levels at which governmental standards for allowable exposures were set for many different chemicals were not based upon any research showing that people were free of symptoms at or below the "safe" levels of exposure, but rather the allowable levels were set at the levels they were because those were the lowest exposure levels industry could achieve at the time. In fact, on average 14% to 17% of the people in those studies experienced adverse health symptoms at or below the so-called "safe" levels that were set based upon those studies (see pp. 730 and 732). Further, if "irritation" effects of chemical exposures were considered, the percentage of people experiencing "irritation" at the "safe" levels was substantially higher than 14%, sometimes as high as 100%. No technology should ever be permitted that would require 14% up to 100% of the people exposed to it to have to leave their jobs, schools, or homes daily in order not to experience symptoms of illness or irritation. The chemicals in these studies include benzene and other hazardous chemicals used in fracking. Due to cuts in funding for independent environmental research since this study was published, not nearly enough further research has been undertaken to determine the safe level of exposures to the thousands of chemicals produced and used by industry today, including in enhanced fracking operations. Accordingly, the attached study is just as valid today as when it was published in 1990, providing additional confirmation that the broad assurances by the Colorado Oil and Gas Association and the Colorado Oil and Gas Conservation Commission that fracking operations are completely safe and no one has ever been injured by exposures caused by such operations are unfounded, irresponsible, and disingenuous.

Exposure to multiple chemicals at one time: Moreover, the studies in this meta-study of many studies considered exposure to just one chemical at a time. Thus, they did not consider the effects upon health of exposure to multiple chemicals at one time. It is well known that when multiple exposures occur at the same time symptoms are generally worse, as additive effects are considered. In many cases, symptoms may be much worse when synergistic effects occur, i.e. a multiplier effect, such that symptoms may be five or ten times worse, for example, when two exposures occur at the same time. Fracking is a technology that exposes people to multiple hazardous chemicals at the same time. The fact that such exposures may be at levels considered to be "safe" by flawed and inadequately documented governmental standards gives no assurance of safety and health from fracking operations.

Exposure of people to chemicals in their homes 24/7. A further fact that should be considered is that these studies considered the adverse effects of exposures to chemicals upon adult, mostly male workers in the workplace working an eight-hour day, 40 hour work week. The workers can recover daily from symptoms caused by workplace exposure during the sixteen hours they are off work before the next work day and by being off work for about 64 hours over the weekend. In contrast, when fracking affects people in their own homes, they may be exposed for many more hours continuously than workers. Common sense tells us that prolonged exposures of people in their homes could cause as bad or worse effects than exposures of workers for shorter and intermittent periods. Finally, when people are exposed to hazardous chemicals in their homes, infants, children, pregnant women, the elderly, and the chronically ill and disabled will be exposed. These groups are known to be more susceptible to illness or injury from chemical exposures than healthy adult workers.

Exposure of especially susceptible persons. In light of the known science regarding fracking, Boulder is to be strongly commended for its wisdom and responsible action to date for having imposed moratoria upon fracking. This is to strongly urge you to continue to apply the precautionary principle by extending the moratorium for three more years and by insisting upon independent, competent, and thorough studies of the health and safety effects of fracking upon workers in the industry and upon residents exposed to such chemicals, and that you do not lift the moratorium unless and until such studies are able to provide reliable assurance of safety and health for everyone from fracking operations.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely yours,

Earl Staelin

Could we maybe pour more energy (ha, get it) and time into developing clean power resources and making them more accessible instead of fracking or killing overseas for oil?

I know that we need energy and whatnot, but maybe we could encourage local farming, to reduce the need for expensive limited resources via a vis trucks and tankers carrying food and limited resources every which way.

We could push for initiatives to get solar, wind, etc. available to more of Colorado's citizens.

We could work on re-using cooking oil as fuel and getting our citizens worked out with bio-engines equipped to do so, etc.

There are peaceful ways to pursue these energy issues without killing and fracking, especially concerning the fact that so many people are not for fracking, period. It's just not safe or sustainable in the short or long run, but I understand our want of more jobs here in Colorado and less war overseas, but are there not other ways to generate similar jobs that are safer for both people (including wildlife) and places?

If we're going to do it (frack), can we please at least strive to make it as safe as possible, because as it stands, it is not? Could we still even more strive to move away from it as quickly as possible, as if it were the toxic process that it is? It consumes so much water in the process and creates so many toxins as well, further polluting limited clean water resources.

I would like an un-fracked Colorado as much as is possible, personally. Alternate solutions exist and simply must be pioneered. We're already doing things in the mountains that are dangerously limited, but really, we don't have to do these things with so many options available.

We could be remembered as a whole state, or even the just the cities of Boulder and Denver, that pioneered better, more sustainable ways to do things. Wouldn't that be cool? We could be remembered as the awesome state that I know we can be, with the consequences of our actions being positive and sustainable for all future generations of plantlife, wildlife, and humanlife alike.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

In faith and love,
Anthony Michael

Boulder County Commissioners

Thank you for the unanimous decision made in June 2013 to enact a moratorium on oil and gas exploration in Boulder County. Your vote was greatly appreciated and crucial to the protection our community.

Now, the moratorium must be extended until we are assured that our communities and the environment are protected. We request that this moratorium be extended at least until June 2018 when: (1) health studies will provide data as to the safety of extraction activities next to homes, schools and businesses; (2) county or statewide regulations are in place to adequately protect our land, air, water and our communities; and (3) a monitoring system that is not based on self-reporting by oil and gas industry is ready to launch.

Our future health is too important to risk.

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Boulder County Commissioners

Thank you for the unanimous decision made in June 2013 to enact a moratorium on oil and gas exploration in Boulder County. Your vote was greatly appreciated and crucial to the protection our community.

Now, the moratorium must be extended until we are assured that our communities and the environment are protected. We request that this moratorium be extended at least until June 2018 when: (1) health studies will provide data as to the safety of extraction activities next to homes, schools and businesses; (2) county or statewide regulations are in place to adequately protect our land, air, water and our communities; and (3) a monitoring system that is not based on self-reporting by oil and gas industry is ready to launch.

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Sincerely,

Thank you for the unanimous decision made in June 2013 to enact a moratorium on oil and gas exploration in Boulder County. Your vote was greatly appreciated and crucial to the protection our community.

Now, the moratorium must be extended until we are assured that our communities and the environment are protected. We request that this moratorium be extended at least until June 2018 when: (1) health studies will provide data as to the safety of extraction activities next to homes, schools and businesses; (2) county or statewide regulations are in place to adequately protect our land, air, water and our communities; and (3) a monitoring system that is not based on self-reporting by oil and gas industry is ready to launch.

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Sincerely,

Businesses always act as if things must be done immediately because they have short term objectives. If fracking can be done safely then it can be done later rather than sooner. Currently there is a lot of extraction that is depressing prices. It is possible that within another year the industry may pull back and decrease production.

We request that this moratorium be extended at least until June 2018 when: (1) health studies will provide data as to the safety of extraction activities next to homes, schools and businesses; (2) county or statewide regulations are in place to adequately protect our land, air, water and our communities; and (3) a monitoring system that is not based on self-reporting by oil and gas industry is ready to launch. If any of these actions are not observed properly, then a Ban must be voted to do. We cannot sacrifice our rights written in the Colorado Constitution. Read your rights! Every time another disregard for the People's need to stop fracking endangers, and the act of fracking itself that wastes millions of gallons of water per frack, and injects its toxic spent chemicals laced water into our fragile water availability, dealing a double whammy on the human ability to survive is taken, it weakens Human immunity, and caused mayhem in people's lives. Is this the Colorado we came to live in? No! Ban Fracking now!

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Hello,

My name is Kiefer Josephs and I have lived in Boulder, CO, for my entire life. I want to see this community thrive and grow as much as anyone else, but I fear that the drilling will only bring negative repercussions to our home. Please extend the moratorium, for three years at the minimum, so we may have more research and opportunities for alternative fuel.

Thank you for considering,

Kiefer Josephs

Boulder County Commissioners

Thank you for the unanimous decision made in June 2013 to enact a moratorium on oil and gas exploration in Boulder County. Your vote was greatly appreciated and crucial to the protection our community.

Now, the moratorium must be extended until we are assured that our communities and the environment are protected. We request that this moratorium be extended at least until June 2018 when: (1) health studies will provide data as to the safety of extraction activities next to homes, schools and businesses; (2) county or statewide regulations are in place to adequately protect our land, air, water and our communities; and (3) a monitoring system that is not based on self-reporting by oil and gas industry is ready to launch.

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Sincerely,

Ms. Deborah Ahlers

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Oct 28, 2014

Boulder County Commissioners

Thank you for the unanimous decision made in June 2013 to enact a moratorium on oil and gas exploration in Boulder County. Your vote was greatly appreciated and crucial to the protection our community.

Now, the moratorium must be extended until we are 100% assured that our communities and the environment are completely protected. We request that this moratorium be extended at least until June 2018 when: (1) health studies will provide data as to the safety of extraction activities next to homes, schools and businesses; (2) county or statewide regulations are in place to adequately protect our land, air, water and our communities; and (3) a monitoring system that is not based on self-reporting by oil and gas industry is ready to launch. We are already seeing the degradation of air quality due to the tracking in Weld and other surrounding counties. In addition, we note other environmental concerns expressed by folks who now live in fracking zones.

A recent Huffington Post article expressed concerns on how legal loopholes may mean extremely dangerous tracking fluids may go unreported:

http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2014/10/22/fracking-chemicals-loophole\_n\_6030914.html

We can not afford to risk the health and well-being of our citizens to an as yet unproven technology that may be toxic and unsafe for our citizens. The environmental and economic consequences to allowing tracking into Boulder County can not be underestimated. Land values could plummet.

And would companies be held 100% financially responsible for hazardous accidents or earthquake damages to homes?

With the utmost respect, I request that we mindfully and heartfully look before we leap into something that may degrade our lives and those of our children and grandchildren. Now is an important moment to pause and put public stewardship of our fair county above the interests of private profiteers.

This precious land we all care for will be grateful.

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Boulder County Commissioners

Thank you for the unanimous decision made in June 2013 to enact a moratorium on oil and gas exploration in Boulder County. Your vote was greatly appreciated and crucial to the protection our community.

Now, the moratorium must be extended until we are assured that our communities and the environment are protected. We request that this moratorium be extended at least until June 2018 when: (1) health studies will provide data as to the safety of extraction activities next to homes, schools and businesses; (2) county or statewide regulations are in place to adequately protect our land, air, water and our communities; and (3) a monitoring system that is not based on self-reporting by oil and gas industry is ready to launch.

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Sincerely,

Mr. Michael Mcburnie

Thank you for the unanimous decision made in June 2013 to enact a moratorium on oil and gas exploration in Boulder County. Your vote was greatly appreciated and crucial to the protection our community.

Now, the moratorium must be extended until we are assured that our communities and the environment are protected. We request that this moratorium be extended at least until June 2018 when: (1) health studies will provide data as to the safety of extraction activities next to homes, schools and businesses; (2) county or statewide regulations are in place to adequately protect our land, air, water and our communities; and (3) a monitoring system that is not based on self-reporting by oil and gas industry is ready to launch.

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Sincerely,

Boulder County Commissioners

Thank you for the unanimous decision made in June 2013 to enact a moratorium on oil and gas exploration in Boulder County. Your vote was greatly appreciated and crucial to the protection our community.

Now, the moratorium must be extended until we are assured that our communities and the environment are protected. We request that this moratorium be extended at least until June 2018 when: (1) health studies will provide data as to the safety of extraction activities next to homes, schools and businesses; (2) county or statewide regulations are in place to adequately protect our land, air, water and our communities; and (3) a monitoring system that is not based on self-reporting by oil and gas industry is ready to launch.

Our beautiful open spaces must be exempt from any exploration or drilling. Please extend the moratorium initiated by Resolution 2013-55 and 2014-56. We must provide a safe place to live and play free from the harm of toxic fracking for all the citizens of Boulder County.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Betty Tagge

Dear Commissioners:

As you are well aware, every day more and more scientific evidence is published regarding the harmful effects of hydraulic fracturing. 1) The science is coming in, and it is not good. 2) The (industry approved) regulations and setbacks are completely questionable. Currently, they clearly are not adequate to protect the public health, air and water. 3) There is inadequate will and funding to enforce what minimal protections are in place.

I am hopeful that a combination of economics, rapid development of clean energy sources, intelligent judicial and policy decisions, and growing awareness of the folly (idiocy) of fracking will eventually shut down the practice.

Hence the need for a long term moratorium. How can we risk endangerment and destruction of beautiful, vital Boulder County unless and until protection of health, safety, well-being and precious common resources are fully protected???

Thank you for taking my comments. I hope to be present at the November 10 hearing. If I am not able to be there in person, please pretend that I am - and count me among the many concerned citizens who support extension of the moratorium for as long as it takes to ensure no harm is done.

Sincerely,

Dear commissioners,

If you allow more time, so much more will be known about how hydraulic fracturing affects our land and our health. The technologies will improve and we will all be safer, if this extraction goes forward. Please approve at least a 3 year extension of the moratorium. There will be no reversal possible if consequences are discovered later. This will affect the future of community for decades to come.

It is possible to fight this legally, and the citizens of Boulder expect you to do it. Extend the moratorium.

Please extend the fracking moratorium in Boulder County. Don't take a chance of toxic fluids and gases seeping into our water and air. Not only is it not worth the risk; it also encourages the gas industry, which is not the solution to climate change and pollution. If the price of energy goes up, so be it-- that may be what it takes to spur further development of sustainable energy sources.

To the Boulder County Commissioners,

As a business owner and resident in Boulder County, I am writing to request that you extend the three year ban on fracking. I was disturbed to find a mailer from "Responsible Colorado" in my mailbox this past week. It states that they will be going door to door gathering signatures for approval of fracking. Their mailer and their very name "Responsible Colorado," is misleading. It would be responsible of this county, and for that matter, this state, to focus on CLEAN energy such as wind and solar. In the meantime, we need to do all we can to keep fracking out of Boulder County. The advantages of fracking are only monetary to those who will benefit from it financially. Meanwhile, the rest of us will suffer the negative impact it will have on our environment. Please do not be led astray by this harmful practice of fracking. The citizens in this county depend on you to make the wise choice of continuing to ban it.

Thank you for your time,

Kara Reese

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

We have seen the harmful impacts that fracking has on our neighboring communities: it is bad for health, lowers property values and contaminates air and water.

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

> Dear Commissioners,

> I am very concerned and alarmed that the Commissioners could allow fracking in Boulder County, by permitting the fracking moratorium to lapse. There are so many known negative side effects that need to be VERY thoroughly researched over MUCH more time.

> Fracking is way too driven by corporate greed, lies, bad politics, and fear. There is so much at stake here and throughout our beautiful, and valued county, state, country and world.... air, land, water and agricultural pollution....including many known (and unknown) very toxic chemicals that greatly affect residents' health.. (and particularly those who are most sensitive and vulnerable: children, the elderly and medically compromised, and the many chemically sensitive people). The land, the general public, and especially the most vulnerable people should have a strong voice and choice, but often don't.

> There is now even new scientific research that links fracking to earthquakes. Very concerning.

> I urge you to also consider the obvious marring of the land with unsightly fracking wells which would so negatively effect the beauty of our amazing Colorado landscape, our greatest natural resource (including our tourist revenues). There would also be a significant negative impact throughout Boulder County on traffic, noise, and air pollution due to construction and trucking related to fracking.

> Please, "do the right thing"....make the "right" decision and extend the moratorium. It costs nothing do do so, whereas the wrong decision could irrevocably cost us everything. As commissioners, you are our voice and the voice of moral conscience. Don't let greed, corporations (and their paid politicians) win out at our expense! Extend the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County. Better still, ban it altogether and be forerunners in leading the way back to truly protecting the people of Boulder, the state, the country, and the world against truly BAD things being done to us in the name of "progress".

> Also, I believe we should be investing in renewable energies such as solar and wind instead! Let's put fracking to rest and put our energies and resources toward this more long range solution to the energy crisis we as a world are in.

> On a more personal note, my husband and I moved here to Boulder County from NYC some 7 years ago for health reasons and to escape the pollution of New York, and the "fall out" from 9/11. (Ironically, I understand that New York's highest court last year upheld the right of municipalities to ban fracking altogether.) I have had breast cancer and suffer from chronic migraines driven by chemical sensitivities that I developed post-chemotherapy. We are very concerned and appalled that there is already fracking "allowed" fairly nearby to Boulder in an area we thought would be a healthier place to live, and that now your actions could possibly allow it to move in even closer and be more pervasive. We otherwise love living here and would hate to feel driven to move again because of this issue.

Dear Commissioners,

I thank you for your past moratorium on the despicable practice of fracking. As people who value, uphold, sanction, and review the quality of life, land, water, and air in Boulder, I don't have to tell you the devastating effects that fracking has upon these resources; you only have to speak to the people of Paradise to hear their tales of horror.

Also, supporting fracking in any form only increases dependency upon the corrupt oil industry, as it lowers the price of gas, and removes the pressure from the public to seek other sources of transportation, or create conservative opportunities to merge and share resources.

There is no end to the information about how the oil elite are shaping, using, abusing, and controlling our world. These horrid people manipulate research, education, media, and violate our principles through sophisticated uses of social engineering. It is so difficult to stand up to such an onslaught of abuse and deception, but people in Boulder are different, and they do this daily.

They stand up in their choices to eat untampered food stuffs, through their research and industry to create new sustainable products, they work to preserve their environment, and they are willing to pay extra NOT to have their lives tampered with via the wiles of the petroleum industry.

I urge you to BAN FRACKING FOREVER, and work to convince other commissioners to do the same.

The world environment is under great stress from the cosmos. We have moved into a new quadrant of the galaxy, this migration has effected the Earth's core, and subsequently the weather patterns, temperature of the ocean, and the life on this planet. We must do everything we can as a species to ease the tensions of these times. Fooling with the strata layers of the Earth is insane at the best of times, and at present could cause catastrophic effects today.

Please look beyond today and into tomorrow. Short term greed has never worked to "the People's" advantage.

I thank you for your vote on our behalf to ban franking now, and forever.

Sincerely,

If all we have right now to stop fracking is putting in a moratorium, then that's what you need to do for your citizens! Please do your job for the citizens who voted for you and extend the moratorium – don't do the job for the oil and gas corporations. Why? Because Boulder can't be bought off by oil and gas corporations and allow them to ruin our land, air, water for ever, think of us today and the many generations of tomorrow – PLEASE DO YOUR JOB – EXTEND THE MORATORIUM ON "NO FRACKING."

Greetings boulder county commissioners,

I am writing to voice my support of extending the moratorium on drilling and fracking in boulder county. Just imagine a Colorado which has been ravaged by the oil industry- all that made Colorado beautiful and worth living in has been destroyed. The water is poisoned; the air has been made toxic; beautiful, ancient landscapes have been replaced with unsightly industrial mining and waste areas... is this really what you or any of us want? Please think carefully before you allow the oil industry to bully you into surrendering that which makes Colorado Colorado.

Dear County Commissioners,

Whatever higher government or industry pressures are weighing on your decision, I urge you to listen to your own conscious & wisdom and choose what's best for our community, both short and long term, by extending the moratorium on Fracking in Boulder County.

There's no "undo" if you allow fracking to occur. It's now or never. At least give it a few more years for the science, health and truth to flush its way out of the existing fracked communities around the US.

Dear Boulder County Commissioners,

My name is Akira Kyle, and I am a voting citizen in Boulder County. I'm 18 years old and a freshman in college (at Carnegie Mellon University). Up until a few months ago, I had lived in Boulder for my entire life, and Boulder still is, and will always be a home for me. Having had the chance to meet so many diverse people from so many diverse backgrounds here at CMU, it has made me realize how lucky I have been to grow up in Boulder. It is a truly wonderful place. I want Boulder to continue to be the wonderful place it is, filled with people who care for each other and the world they live in. I have always thought of Boulder as a community that was forward-looking. I hope this is case, since if we are a truly forward looking community, then we should extend the moratorium on hydraulic fracturing (fracking) in Boulder County. There are many reasons for not allowing hydraulic fracturing in Boulder, but I think the most important reason among these is the fact that in the long term, hydraulic fracturing offers no benefits for the community, and instead poses many potential risks. While the amount of natural gas in Boulder County may be debated, it cannot be debated that natural gas is, indeed a finite resource. In the current landscape of energy sources, it may happen that natural gas is a cheap source of energy at the moment (and there is evidence to show this is likely not true as well), however the key feature of any energy source is that there is an infrastructure that is required for the production of the energy from the source. Capital is required for the creation of this infrastructure, and infrastructure is useful only so long as there are resources for which that infrastructure may be used. So for any finite resource, the capital used for the creation of the infrastructure necessary for conversion of that resource to energy will only generate a finite return until the depletion of the finite resource. However for any renewable resource, the capital put into the creation of the infrastructure will always, in the end, be creating a greater return than for the finite resource since it will generate a return for far longer than the finite resource. It may be pointed out that this simplification assumes the initial capital is the same, and that maintain costs are neglected, which one cannot always assume. However even if the initial capital for the finite resource is vastly smaller than for the renewable resource, and the maintenance costs are less than the return (which is a valid assumption since otherwise there would be no commercial enable energies), in the long run, the return on the renewable resource will always offset any larger initial capital costs. Hence we should be investing in renewable energies rather than hydraulic fracturing. This little bit of analysis of the long run economics is the most compelling of the arguments against hydraulic fracturing to me, however there are many more arguments against hydraulic fracturing that take into account the short term effects of hydraulic fracturing, and the result is the same, and that is that we should not allow hydraulic fracturing to be an energy source. Looking to the future, renewable energies are the only logical investment. So I hope that we will keep looking forward to the future and make decisions in the present which will lead to a better future.

Sincerely,
Akira Kyle

Dear Commissioners:

Hydraulic Fracturing has much potential for a harming our citizens, now and for generations to come. Much needs to be studied and then re mediated before it is safe to consider allowing fracking to be allowed.

Please vote to extend the moratorium for three more years.

Please protect and stand by our rights to collective self-determination by extending the county moratorium on fracking for a minimum of 3 years.

By extending the moratorium we will be giving ourselves time to weigh the scientific evidence that fracking may be inexorably contaminating ground water

Please protect our water. Please protect our children, families, and our collective health. Please protect and respect our rights to determine how we want to live and be treated.

Thanks so much!

Boulder County Commissioners
Oil/Gas Comments
P.O. Box 471
Boulder, CO 80306

Dear County Commissioners,

Please extend the fracking moratorium for Boulder County.

Here are my questions that remain and concerns unanswered about fracking.

If Colorado has the strictest fracking regulations in the nation:

- Why are the fracking companies allowed to spread their drilling mud around the drill site?
- Is the water tested around all drill sites before drilling and during drilling and fracking operations?
- What is in fracking fluids? (Benzene, toluene, ethylbenzene and xylene were all found near drilling sites in Queensland, etc.)
- What are the health effects of fracking fluids and gasses released by the wells? (Reports of cancer, Leukemia, nausea, insomnia, headaches, dizziness, convulsions, coma, chromosomal aberrations, and anemia can be caused from long term exposure to benzene alone.)

- What percentage of the fracking fluid is recycled? (Perhaps only 5%)
- Where does the rest of that fluid end up? Is it allowed to enter our wastewater treatment facilities that are unequipped to handle it or injected underground to end up where later on?
- Where do the sometimes radioactive fluid wastes and filters end up? Are they hidden in an abandoned building as found in another state, added to our landfills, or spread over public lands near the well?
- Since Colorado is an arid state with a long history of water rights battles, who has to give up the million plus gallons of water to frack each well when we know that that water will not be useable again? (250 billion gallons of fresh water used in U.S. in 2012 and turned into carcinogenic waste water <http://thinkprogress.org/climate/2013/10/04/2731921/fracking-billion-gallons-wastewater/>)
- Since fracking fluid under pressure is designed to split rocks, does it not also crack concrete casings that are meant to seal the drill shaft and well from leakage into water sources and surface air?
- Is it even possible to drill a well that will not leak?
- What can happen when the well leaks?
(<http://thinkprogress.org/climate/2014/09/15/3567369/fracking-water-contamination-casing/> )
- When earthquakes happen or other natural earth shifts occur, what will happen to the "sealed" wells?
- Are all wells required to be tested regularly for leakage of gases (mostly methane) during and after the well's active use? (Cornell Univ. study in 2011 found leakage of 2.2-3.9% of produced gas per well. Sometimes the leakage was as high as 8%) (Methane gas has 105 times more global warming effect per pound than does CO2.)
- How damaging to air quality is flaring?
- Do the fracking companies post a bond to repair any damage to land, air, human health and wildlife from their well activity or are the taxpayers expected pick up that tab?
- Is natural gas really a "cleaner" form of energy than coal? (Not according to: <http://www.napalmcreek.com/global-warming.php> )
- What recourse does a homeowner have when the value of their property drops significantly because fracking began in their neighborhood?

Until all these concerns are addressed, I urge the Boulder County Commissioners to vote to extend the fracking moratorium.

Sincerely,

Penny Dumas & Jeffrey Dumas

Please please please... we are surrounded by fracking. So many towns proceeding forward with an industry that keeps its chemicals SECRET. There have been emergency responders who couldn't take action on sick adults working at frack sites because the chemicals are kept secret. until the FULL contents of the fracking has been revealed and analyzed by an independent party, one can only assume THEY HAVE SOMETHING TO HIDE.

Earthquakes, spills, fracking waste, well water pollution, air pollution, studies showing ill health effects and complaints to COGCC that are minimized or misrepresented.

Please extend the moratorium for 3 more years.

We should require settlements to be disclosed so we know why people are complaining and settling. We need more time so we have more data and studies on the health effects and water and air pollution from hydraulic fracturing and the chemicals used in hydraulic fracturing.

They keep denying and preliminary data is pointing to hydraulic fracturing as the cause.

The vast majority of the population in Boulder County, and especially those who have been negatively impacted by fracking, are looking to your leadership in extending the moratorium. Perhaps you live away from fracking operations and therefore have not seen your property values decrease as a result of proximity to fracking, or have never had your water or air polluted by fracking, but take a moment and think if you or a loved one were one of the many who have been, or who would be in the future should you allow the moratorium to expire. Please make the right decision---do not sell out the health and well being of current and future generations that you represent--extend the moratorium.

The issues with Front Range pollution continue and are still a valid reason to continue the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County. We are hearing more and more issues regarding fracking such as this report from San Diego:
http://sandiegofreepress.org/2014/10/massive-dumping-of-fracking-wastewater-into-aquifers-shows-big-oils-power-in-california/#.VE6\_UleTd5g

"..documents obtained by the Center for Biological Diversity reveal that almost 3 billion gallons of oil industry wastewater were illegally dumped into Central California aquifers that supply drinking water and irrigation water for farms. "

We can't trust the industry and water is too precious a resource to waste on oil and gas extraction, though I realize that may not be a sufficient legal argument, it is clearly an ethical one.

Thank you for continuing the push-back against the oil and gas industry.

Commissioners:

It is with the utmost urgency and seriousness that I must demand that you extend the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County for a minimum of at least three more years. The dangers of toxic chemicals seeping from fracking wells into our ground water, as well as vast and unknown amounts of methane into our air from each leaking well, is a real and eminent danger. I have studied fracking at great length and am firmly convinced that these wells cannot be constructed in a way that can assure that they will not leak, and in the vast majority of cases, that they will definitely leak, whether immediately or in the near future.

Considering the highly unpredictable climate change affected times we live in, this is definitely not the time to be poisoning our ground water, as we may desperately need to drill many water wells in the near future if we go into an extended drought, such as that now being experienced by Californians.

Thank you.

To our County Commissioners,
Please extend the fracking moratorium in Boulder County. Modern fracking is a controversial, industrial practice with numerous health and environmental concerns that need to be further researched before moving forward to allow this in our county.

The oil and natural gas will still be there if we choose to allow extraction down the road - but you can't undo possibly poisoning our water, air and families if you permit this to happen now.

County Commissioners Cindy Domenico, Deb Gardner, and Elise Jones,

In order to protect our County environments and the people who live within them from the chemical contamination and environmental degradation that has been proven to accompany fracking operations, and in order to give the people of Boulder County the time necessary to establish a Home Rule form of government in which to ban fracking, it is imperative that you extend the moratorium on fracking for the minimum of an additional 3 years until January 1, 2015.

There is plenty of evidentiary information available with which to support the continuation of a moratorium. There is also sufficient proof that fracking violates the constitutional rights of the people of this community. Failing to defend these constitutional rights and protect the health, safety and welfare of the citizens of the Boulder County community represents a dereliction of the oath of office you all took when you were sworn in as Commissioners.

You have a responsibility to the people of Boulder County, not to the multi-national corporations who would exploit our community for their own financial gain.

Do your duty. Uphold your oath of office. Extend the moratorium.

To All Boulder County Commissioners,

I am strongly in favor of you extending the moratorium for 3 more years.

We recently travelled to Lake Powell AZ. and passed through much land which has been fracked.

You can feel the difference as you travel through it.

I believe that earthquakes are caused by too much fracking.

I believe that peoples health is put at risk if they live next to fracking operations.

I believe that water is wasted by using it on fracking operations.

I believe that environmental disasters can cause dangerous consequences to areas that have been fracked as we saw during last years floods with the pollution of farmlands.

We already have energy that is nonpolluting and does not harm the earth. We have to be more careful of this fragile planet we live on or we won't have it to live on.

We need to focus on energy that is nonpolluting and insist that the energy companies provide this for us rather than keeping it hidden until all oil and gas resources are used up.

Just today I saw a generator that is run on water.....so let's get going!!! We are much more creative than just to continue to do the same old thing...oil and gas.

So for all of the above I strongly urge you to extend the moratorium in Boulder County on oil and gas exploration. I really wish you could just vote to not do oil and gas exploration in Boulder County.

There is no need to submit to the sociopaths who are running things at this point in time. Just say NO!

Thanks You,

Dear Commissioners, I'm writing to request that you extend the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County for as long as possible, and ideally forever. The evidence is clear: Fracking causes severe health problems, birth defects, and now there's even evidence that children are dying because of it. Not to mention, we must do everything possible to prevent the extreme dangers of climate change brought about by extracting and burning fracked natural gas. We don't need to rely on fossil fuels and can easily convert our entire economy to renewables and wind.

My company Snugg Home's pilot program (paid for by a Boulder Energy Challenge grant from the City of Boulder) is demonstrating the feasibility of converting homes and automobiles off of natural gas and onto solar powered electricity today, with existing technology, and with financial payback periods of 5 to 7 years. See a video explaining how this works here: <http://www.snugghome.com/bec>

We can do this!

You as Commissioners have a moral obligation to protect our community from this extremely dangerous practice. Please listen to the people who have spoken time and time again and continue the moratorium indefinitely.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Adam Stenftenagel

Dear Commissioners,

Please do not allow fracking in Boulder County. The evidence is strong that such practices pollute our water and are bad for our community. We need to focus on GREEN job creation and END our dependence on fossil fuels like gas from fracking. Do the right thing for our community and our future - DON'T ALLOW FRACKING!

Dear Cindy Domenico, Deb Gardner, and Elise Jones,

We have recently moved to Lake Valley and I am very concerned about health impacts for Boulder County residents if Boulder County allows expanded oil and gas drilling throughout Boulder County.

My family and I recently vacationed on Island in the Sky near the Big Flat project near Canyonlands National Park, UT. The off-gassing of methane was perceptible and burned our eyes and noses while we ate lunch during a bike ride through Dead Horse Point State Park.

It is one thing to be exposed temporarily to such industrial waste, lack of proper oversight, and blatant denial of public health concerns.

It is another thing entirely to be faced with O&G well heads in our back yards, where our air and water will be contaminated by "standard" industry practices.

Please extend the moratorium another three years. In the meantime, review again the safety record, incident records, and health impact statements from our neighboring counties who have embraced O&G money and have relinquished oversight authority and regulation power to corporate interests.

I value clean water and air as, I'm sure, do you.

Thank you,

Considering influence and bribery from the fossil fuel industry over the will, health, and lives of the people of Boulder County must not be tolerated. It is absolutely clear what the people want, and what is best for them. Clean drinking water is more important to all of us than an obsolete, dangerous energy source. Support renewables and extend the hydraulic fracturing moratorium at least 3 more years.

Dearest Ladies of the Canyon,

Please do what you can to protect our air and water from the oil-and-gas industry. This is important to me. I prefer a permanent moratorium if it is possible. I don't understand how some of us fail to see the health degradation that has been clearly associated with the proliferation of hydraulic fracturing chemicals. Perhaps a 3-year moratorium might give us enough time to more-clearly demonstrate how dangerous the drilling is, so even the oil-and-gas people will want to protect their own families from it.

Sincerely,

Fracking is not being done in a safe manner anywhere in the country. Safe fracking will not happen until the Federal or state government passes strict, strong and enforceable regulations. It is painfully clear that this is not going to happen. You must be aware of the danger to humans and the environment that fracking has already caused. You must extend the moratorium for at least 3 years to protect the people in Boulder County. This is your responsibility.

We don't need to Frack Boulder County. Let's be a model to the rest of the State and Nation when it comes to our views of environmental stewardship, clean air and water, and our management of natural resources. The only ones who win if we let them Frack will be Big Oil and out of state workers. Colorado and Boulder stand to lose if we let the moratorium expire. Thank you for your service to the people of Boulder County. I urge you to continue to extend the county moratorium on fracking until it is shown there are no significant public health ill effects from this industrial activity. That includes local water quality, air quality, airborne pollutants, and worker safety.

As the NG industry now states, there is more than 100 years of gas available. If so, keeping it in the ground for 3 to 5 years more won't harm their long-term income stream when the experts deem their industry is operated as well as most others are. Unfortunately, the oil & gas industry holds the record for highest accident- and on-job death-rate -- by a factor of 5.

As an energy engineer, I am highly motivated to decarbonize our energy systems. At this point, a number of studies by researchers have shown that there is a high likelihood that NG use is worsening the short- and long-term effects of switching from coal to NG. My professional efforts are to enable the significant switch from fossil fuel to renewable sources of electricity.

Thank you for your time and courage.

Dear Boulder County Commissioners,
Please, please, please extend the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County. We do not want to see our beloved home destroyed by wells. It is time to move into the future anyway, with sustainable energy, not natural gas!
Fracking has led to higher amounts of ground level ozone in Erie than in L.A., California. We already have to deal with the remnants of poor quality air coming this way...let's not add to the problem!
Please, for the health of my family, my neighbors' families, and your families, extend the moratorium for three more years!

Dear Commissioners,

I implore you to extend the fracking moratorium in Boulder County for at least 3 more years. Practically every day, we are hearing more scientific evidence that fracking not only severely harms or destroys water and air quality, but also that the climate change impacts of this so-called "bridge fuel" are entirely cancelled out by the release of methane in the fracking process. Boulder County's residents and its ecosystems can't afford the multiple and catastrophic harms we've seen other regions suffer. Please extend the moratorium!

Dear Boulder County Commissioners,

I know it is a busy time of year, and that some of you are mostly concerned with the upcoming election. But please know that to many of us, we are mostly concerned with fracking near our homes and schools. Governor Hickenlooper has lost my vote after seeing his treatment of Longmont for amending our city charter to include a fracking ban in city limits. I worked my tail off for that amendment - petitioning around town with a two year old in a backpack on my back and a five year old holding my hand. Knocking on doors of people with opposing views to try to convince them to vote to protect their air and water. I am not an activist. I am a very concerned mother. I live on the far west side of Longmont, next to 75th - and my children's school is at 75th as well. I cannot imagine all of the work we've done in this town to protect ourselves being undone by unincorporated Boulder County. Boulder County has a reputation. One that we believed when we moved to Colorado from Iowa. Boulder County is home to one of the most educated and healthy populations in the country. The people of Boulder County BEG you to allow us to remain healthy by extending the moratorium on fracking. We DO NOT want it here. Please uphold your duties to protect your constituents. Please extend the moratorium.

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

The burden of proof of safety of fracking needs to be "verifiably" researched studying the proprietary fracking chemicals involved.

Being exempt from the Clean Air and Water Acts demonstrates they have no compunction or responsibility for endangering our health or the Earth's. Why would we want to encourage this type of recklessness with a green light? Just because all around us big chemical companies are destroying this planet, is no reason to allow one more assault in this form.

We have seen the harmful impacts that fracking has on our neighboring communities: it is bad for health, lowers property values and contaminates air and water.

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years.

I SINCERELY thank you for taking this needed action.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Sincerely,

Ms. Yvonne Short

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

I have seen the results of fracking firsthand in my native PA and throughout Ohio, and North Dakota as I work in the construction equipment business. I know what hydraulic fracking is and how little control the well drillers have in what direction and how the drills work. The fluid is toxic. Also, for a state with serious concerns about water, we are crazy to allow this interest to consume our water and at no cost to them. It takes 80 tanker loads of fresh water to drill a well. Today, the trucks legally pull up to fire hydrants wherever they wish that is closest to the site and suck the water for free.

As odd as this sounds, but I am aware of the declining price of oil and because I work internationally I know Saudi Arabia is driving the price of oil down because America has become a net producer. However, this strategy has worked before where once the price is driven down to a key level, many oil and gas companies will either pull out of fracking and abandon their wells or declare bankruptcy as it will no longer be profitable. Then we have to clean up the mess.

Last point, CO is incredibly gorgeous and the best state I have ever lived in for its quality of life. Recent air quality tests have proven that the level of methane gas is highly toxic along the range and clear up to the divide. What will happen to our quality of life in Boulder County. Please be smart and not choose to create the mess any further as PA, OH, TX, ND and OK are doing. Given the depth of the wells in all directions, we would never be able to stay out of our drinking water and we know it's polluting the air and people are getting sick - Weld County has proven that.

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Halliburton just got caught distributing diesel -- a potent carcinogen -- to companies using it illegally.

Tell the EPA to crack down on Halliburton's diesel sales.

Take Action!

Dear Scott,

Halliburton has been caught selling diesel -- regulated by the EPA as one of the most toxic substances used in fracking -- to companies illegally injecting thousands of gallons of the stuff into the ground across the United States, putting our groundwater at risk of contamination.

Due to the "Halliburton Loophole," created by an Energy Task Force chaired by Dick Cheney -- the former CEO of Halliburton and former United States Vice President -- the toxic brew that fracking companies inject into the ground near drinking water is unregulated. Diesel is one of the few fracking chemicals so toxic that it is exempted from the loophole, but thanks to Halliburton and its partners, diesel is still being illegally injected. We need to take a stand today and get the EPA to stop this threat to our drinking water.

Tell the EPA to crack down on Halliburton's use of diesel in unregulated fracking!

Hydraulic fracturing, or fracking, is the process in which highly pressurized liquid is pumped into the ground in order to open up fractures along a rock formation, in order to extract hydrocarbons trapped within the stone. In the process of opening up the seams, fracking has the potential to break into ground water sources, spilling the pressurized contents of the injected chemical compounds into aquifers and wells.

The Halliburton Loophole -- passed by Congress in 2005 -- was a huge gift to the fracking industry. It stripped the EPA of its authority under the Safe Drinking Water Act to regulate the injection of fracking fluids. The result: thousands of people across the country have suffered illness and economic devastation as the very land on which they live becomes toxic. The industry, meanwhile, continues to push "self-regulation," in which the companies involved don't even have to disclose the ingredients in their toxic cocktails.

Because of the extremely toxic nature of diesel, it was one of the only substances left out of the Halliburton Loophole. While it is still allowed in fracking, the EPA has stated that only companies meeting certain standards for storage safety are able to use it in their operations. However, Halliburton has continuously ignored this rule, selling diesel fracking chemicals to companies using it illegally. The carcinogenic brew that diesel contains is at risk of infecting groundwater sources across the country, exposing citizens to risk of cancer, stillbirths, and other illnesses.

The fracking industry has repeatedly claimed that it does not use diesel. Despite this, the Environmental Integrity Project identified over 350 wells in which diesel was used, none of which had applied for or received the necessary Safe Drinking Water Act permit. Clearly, the EPA is failing in its job to ensure our access to safe, drinkable water. We need the EPA to assert its authority, regulate Halliburton and its partners, and safeguard our water.

Tell the EPA to crack down on Halliburton's diesel frackdown!

Over the past decade, fracking has exploded across the country. Whenever light has been shed on the industry, it has revealed appalling practices. Recently, it emerged that numerous fracking companies had dumped billions of gallons of fracking wastewater into California's aquifers.

We're here to tell this Story, to prevent it from being buried, and to speak up against a prevailing narrative from the industry that government regulation is somehow more harmful than "self-regulation." When hiding behind secrecy, all sorts of violations are able to run rampant. The fracking industry seeks to pull the greatest amount of fuel out of the ground at the cheapest cost, and move from one community to the next as it pumps it dry. We need to tell the Story of what happens after the drill bits are pulled up -- the Story of the land and the people who live there. Their stories vastly outnumber those of the fracking companies, and if we can get enough people to tell their stories, we can ensure that the land will remain usable, for generations to come. Please help us tell this story today.

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

I believe that the process of fracking, high pressure drilling and injection of toxic chemicals deep into the earth destroys the land and seeps into the water. It will severely impact the health of men, women, children, plants and animals within countless miles of each well. No amount of money can compensate for the damage it does. It should not be allowed, anywhere, ever. The companies that use this process are rapists in the worst sense of the word. Raping the land and the people, animals and plants on it and using and destroying our most precious resource: water.

The current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for a minimum of three years. And then completely and unequivocally abolish the process of fracking forever, everywhere.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Only three years !!! It should be permanent, until they can do it without contaminating anything !!! I worry about the loss of water. One of these days water will cost more than gasoline. Don't forget the earthquakes we had in north Denver years ago, when forced water caused the plates to shift. Those plates were shifting there, but the earthquakes caused my 1960 Pontiac's wheels in Wheat Ridge to sink two inches into my driveway. Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

We have seen the harmful impacts that fracking has on our neighboring communities: it is bad for health, lowers property values and contaminates air and water.

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Sincerely,

Fracking will be detrimental to Boulder's economy and to it's citizens. We will lose our reputation as a health oriented city and people will have their health compromised and their property values lowered. Property taxes may no longer provide the income for the lifestyle that we now enjoy. We need to think long term instead of crisis intervention. The fracking industry will push for their immediate satisfaction and we will be left with their waste. They really don't care. How many of their executives live next door to an oil or gas well. Can't think of a one.

You have done a great job so far .

You should stop ignoring the science and overwhelming evidence that there are more problems with fracking than benefits! It is evident that this is decision for you is more of a pandering to big oil and gas than benefitting anyone but yourselves. Do not think the people of Boulder County will lay down and do nothing about it! Many of us have had civil disobedience training and we are willing and able to physically block fracking and make sure that the media plays it up big! We will make sure that is goes nation wide as other communities have done - we will fight for our rights and to stop the land grab by oil and gas facilitates by you!

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

We have seen the harmful impacts that fracking has on our neighboring communities: it is bad for health, lowers property values and contaminates air and water.

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Sincerely,

For reals though, fracking is detrimental to the ecosystem and environment (where we live) and it affects everybody. Once this planet can no longer support human life, that's it; no amount of temporary wealth is worth that. Tell the fracking companies to invest in an alternative energy source, like algae or whatever they want. The fracking and oil companies are the ones who are capable of changing this planet for the better, if only a different direction is followed. They could come out looking like heroes, actually being heroes, and making bank while they're at it.

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

I in work in the mining and construction equipment business and have seen the negative impact in PA where more than 600 earthquakes are logged each year, North Dakota is dumping the injection well chemicals into shallow rubber-lined pits. A Texas breach of wells has now been confirmed. Study the wave of health problems in our own Weld County...the list goes on. And now we realize that those supposedly who have been fighting the encroachment into the town limits have had an ulterior motive all along. This is the most beautiful area thanks to the wisdom of the town fathers in the 1960s who set up vast tracks of open space that have helped make it so. Now wells will ruin that, drain our water supplies as it requires 80 tanker loads of fresh water to inject a well and we need that water. Recent air pollution research states that the Boulder area has very high levels of methane gas - very common in fracking areas due to leaks from the wells, piping, carriers, etc.State of Colorado reports 3,3000 reported leads in the past few years. How many go unreported we do not know.

Fracking is all around Boulder and more wells are going in every week. At least let's keep it out of our towns. If nothing else matters, wells will seriously impact our property values and reduce our tax base. People will not move here as the evidence mounts and reaches the public regularly. And its happening. NPR is now doing an expose series, scientists, engineers and industry people are speaking out. Once it gets into Boulder and Louisville, it will never leave.

We have a right to choose if we want fracking or not. Don't let big money and big business change our great towns. They will leave a disaster when they leave and they always leave.

Brian Barlow

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

We have seen the harmful impacts that fracking has on our neighboring communities: it is bad for health, lowers property values and contaminates air and water.

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Sincerely,

Mr. Tim Schabacker

Have you heard what happened in California recently? They discovered that the oil industry's wastewater was injected directly into the aquifers through at least nine injection disposal wells, which are used by the oil industry to get rid of waste contaminated with fracking fluids and other pollutants. Don't let this happen to our county, let alone our state.

Commissioners,

Have you seen this news article? It was just published yesterday, the 9th of October.

<http://rt.com/usa/194620-california-aquifers-fracking-contamination/>

Aquifers are being polluted in California. How do we know this is not happening here in Colorado? You have to put an end to this fracking nonsense. The science is clearer and clearer everyday... fracking pollutes the air and destroys water. Destroys our water!

This type of extraction has to stop. It is a direct violation of our rights. We can't exist without access to clean water or air. How can the Oil and Gas companies continue to be allowed to poison us?

Dear County Commissioners,

In regard to the ban on fracking in Boulder County that is set to expire in December, I add my voice to many other voters in Boulder County who support extending this ban for at least one year and/or making the ban permanent. As has been shown by many scientific studies in areas where fracking has been done, it causes pollution of our water and air that is dangerous to public health, as well as in some cases starting seismic activity. Please do the right thing and protect our county from the oil companies who want to do fracking in our area without regard to damaging our environment. Thanks!

Fracking has the potential to ruin the beautiful open space areas that we have so carefully preserved here for decades. Open space is one of the most valuable features of Boulder County - where else can you find anything like it? It would be such a shame to have protected our Open Space from development, only to have it ruined by dirty drilling and well pads - not to mention what would happen to our air quality!

Dear Commissioners,

Currently, I am working hard to gather signatures asking for a special election for voters to discuss making Boulder a Home Rule County. If we were to become one, we could write a Charter forbidding fracking or GMOs in the county—issues the present commissioners have dealt with unsatisfactorily.

I am ready to vote for Cindy's opponent because of her failure to support a moratorium before acceding to public pressure. Now she needs to come out for extending it if she has any possibility of getting my vote.

The present triumvirate also failed to protect organic farmers from GMOs. Another reason I support Home Rule is that we can increase the number of commissioners to represent the entire county. This would prevent something like the unfair taxation of rural parts of the county being unfairly assessed for highway improvements they never got.

In short, ladies, the citizens are not happy with you!

Boulder has a long and storied history of doing the right thing in the face of pressure from outside economic interests. *Please* continue to do the right thing now, by extending the moratorium on fracking unless and until it is demonstrated and *proven*, including with long-term studies, to be *entirely safe* for the health of the surrounding populations, both human and wildlife.

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

We, the people of Boulder County, elected you to keep our environment clean and protect our health and safety. Boulder is known for being progressive and putting high values on our health and environment. We do not have lax rules that allow big industries to destroy that which is most valuable to us. That is why we elected you, and why we request that you listen to us now.

When we talk about fracking in Boulder County we are literally talking about a highly toxic industry being allowed to spring up in our backyards. How can we allow the oil and gas industry to pump thousands of gallons of once valuable, clean water since contaminated with a cocktail of carcinogens and other undisclosed toxic chemicals into the ground where we live? The fracking industry is exempt from the Clean Water Act and the Clean Air Act. Their wells are notorious for leaking, polluting our air, and our underground aquifers. This is the air our children breathe, and the water our families drink. There is no oversight over fracking and the oil and gas industry is not held accountable for the damage it causes. This industry has shown blatant disregard for the people who are affected by their toxic chemicals. Many communities must now truck in water because their water is too contaminated to use. More and more people are becoming aware of the dangers posed by fracking. No one wants to risk their family's health by exposing them to these awful chemicals; property values fall, and people move. Is this permanent, and costly damage to our environment, our water, our air, and our health something that is tolerable in Boulder County?

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years.

We will always elect those people who will stand up for our rights, and not those who back down in the face of powerful interests.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Sincerely,

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

We have seen the harmful impacts that fracking has on our neighboring communities: it is bad for health, lowers property values and contaminates air and water.

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years. We all need to care more about our environment, our clean lifestyles, and the future of our city and of our children

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Fracking is just another way for corporations to steal from the rest of us. The damage they leave behind has to be repaired or dealt with and it is our money/time that will be spent in doing so- or in living with the consequences. Fracking is nothing more than irresponsible, greedy people grasping quick money and sneaking off before they are held accountable.

County Commissioners Cindy Domenico, Deb Gardner and Elise Jones,

As a citizen of Boulder County, I am calling on you to extend the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County for an additional 3 years, until December 31st, 2017.

As representatives of the people of Boulder County, it is incumbent upon all three of you to extend the moratorium as per the will of the people of this community. You have a responsibility, per your oath of office, to uphold the Colorado Constitution, specifically Article II, sections 1, 2, 3, and 28, which define our right to defend our lives, our homes and our right to self governance.

Before I cast my vote for County Commissioner in the November election, it is imperative that I know if Cindy Domenico will defend these rights and prioritize the health, safety and welfare of myself and my fellow Boulder County neighbors. Fracking is the most imminent threat that Boulder County faces, and Ms. Domenico's stance on this issue is crucial to my vote. And so I charge you to announce the moratorium decision no later than October 14th, 2014, the date the County has scheduled for mailing out the ballots.

Thank you for your time.

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

We have seen the harmful impacts that fracking has on our neighboring communities: it is bad for health, lowers property values and contaminates air and water.

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Bonetti Donna

Dear Commissioners,

I am writing to let you know that I do not support fracking in Boulder County. I urge you to extend the moratorium. Not do I believe that there are serious potential health risk to our community and environment, fracking will change our the face of our county and cities, how we live and the very nature of the community that we have built here. Further, it is my firm conviction that our watershed cannot sustain the resources needed by the fracking industry.

Please act to extend the moratorium,

Jennifer Hinton

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

The number one question for all of you is: why? Why allow tracking in Boulder County when we KNOW the negative impacts of this activity?

I suffer from asthma and many allergies; and my fear of what tracking is doing to our air, water, and health is real. To allow such a filthy & water-intensive industry in our beautiful "high desert" is absurd. I believe water should go to raising food & supporting people - not to be laden with chemicals and pumped into the ground never to be usable again.

There are other ways to get energy - I have solar panels on my roof, own a hybrid car, hang my clothes to dry, ride my bicycle or walk when feasible, have CFL bulbs throughout my house, recycle, etc. This way of life is not painful, and should be what we are promoting instead of fracking.

Please extend the moratorium on fracking - it's the right thing to do for our citizens and our planet.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Sincerely,

Date: Thursday, October 09, 2014 11:09:27 PM

Dear County Commissioners,

The following article leaves no doubt that it is time to ban fracking. Lawsuits are far preferable to no safe water, and to sickness and death caused by chemical poisoning. Once our water is contaminated, Boulder County will become a ghost town and the people who can't get out because they can't afford it will get sick or die. It is your moral obligation to say no to a state government that is in bed with the polluters. The motivation of the oil and gas industry, and our governor, is money, not our lives or our safety. You stand between our well being and illness, and between our lives and our death. This is not hyperbole. it is what has been demonstrated over and over again, and by what is happening in CA right now as a result of fracking. Join the people of Boulder County in standing against this catastrophe. Ban fracking now!

California aquifers contaminated with billions of gallons of fracking wastewater

Industry illegally injected about 3 billion gallons of fracking wastewater into central California drinking-water and farm-irrigation aquifers, the state found after the US Environmental Protection Agency ordered a review of possible contamination.

According to documents obtained by the Center for Biological Diversity, the California State Water Resources Board found that at least nine of the 11 hydraulic fracturing, or fracking, wastewater injection sites that were shut down in July upon suspicion of contamination were in fact riddled with toxic fluids used to unleash energy reserves deep underground. The aquifers, protected by state law and the federal Safe Water Drinking Act, supply quality water in a state currently suffering unprecedented drought.

The documents also show that the Central Valley Water Board found high levels of toxic chemicals - including arsenic, thallium, and nitrates - in water-supply wells near the wastewater-disposal sites.

Arsenic is a carcinogen that weakens the immune system, and thallium is a common component in rat poison.

"Arsenic and thallium are extremely dangerous chemicals," said Timothy Krantz, a professor of environmental studies at the University of Redlands, according to the Center for Biological Diversity.

"The fact that high concentrations are showing up in multiple water wells close to wastewater injection sites raises major concerns about the health and safety of nearby residents."

The Center for Biological Diversity obtained a letter from the state Water Board to the US Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) that said the Central Valley Regional Water Board discovered the health violations. Following the July suspension of the 11 injection sites, the EPA ordered a review of aquifers in the area to be completed within 60 days.

The state Water Board also said that 19 more injection wells may have also contaminated sensitive, protected aquifers, while dozens more wells have been the source of wastewater dumped into aquifers of unknown quality.

Despite these damning findings, the extent of wastewater pollution is still undetermined, as the Central Valley Water Board has thus far only tested eight water wells of the more than 100 in the area, according to the documents. Half of those tested came up positive for containing an excessive amount of toxic chemicals.

To unleash oil or natural gas, fracking requires blasting large volumes of highly pressurized water, sand, and other chemicals into layers of rock. The contents of fracking fluid include chemicals that the energy industry and many government officials will not name, yet they insist the chemicals do not endanger human health, contradicting findings by scientists and environmentalists. Toxic fracking wastewater is then either stored in deep underground wells, disposed of in open pits for evaporation, sprayed into waste fields, or used over again.

Fracking has been linked to groundwater contamination, an uptick in earthquakes, exacerbation of drought conditions and a host of health concerns for humans and the local environment.

A recent study by the US Drought Monitor noted that 58 percent of California is experiencing "exceptional drought," which is the most serious category on the agency's five-level scale.

Meanwhile, a fracking job can require as much as 140,000 to 150,000 gallons of water per day, water that then cannot be consumed or used in farming operations.

The Center for Biological Diversity noted that the contamination of water sources could be much worse in another regard, as flowback water that comes from oil wells in the state can contain levels of benzene, toluene, and other toxic chemicals that are hundreds of times higher than legally allowed. Flowback fluid is then released back into wastewater storage wells.

Chemicals like benzene can take years to eventually find their way to water sources.

"Clean water is one of California's most crucial resources, and these documents make it clear that state regulators have utterly failed to protect our water from oil industry pollution," said Hollin Kretzmann, an attorney for the Center for Biological Diversity.

"Much more testing is needed to gauge the full extent of water pollution and the threat to public health. But Governor [Jerry] Brown should move quickly to halt fracking to ward off a surge in oil industry wastewater that California simply isn't prepared to dispose of safely."

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

We have seen the harmful impacts that fracking has on our neighboring communities: it is bad for health, lowers property values and contaminates air and water.

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Sincerely,

Date: Thursday, October 09, 2014 10:16:45 PM

Dear County Commissioners,

With respect, I ask that you read this article about contaminated water in California, and act to prevent the same in Boulder County. Extend the moratorium on fracking in our county.

In addition to extending the moratorium on fracking, I ask that you speak out vigorously in support of the following:

- end all government subsidies to the oil and gas industry
- transfer that support to the renewable energy industry
- support research on the effect of fracking chemicals on human health
- support research on the connection between fracking and induced seismicity (human-caused earthquakes)

Yes, I know that you don't control federal subsidies or state subsidies. But you can use your voice and your position to take a stand. Please do so.

Sincerely,

Anita Li

California aquifers contaminated with billions of gallons of fracking wastewater

Industry illegally injected about 3 billion gallons of fracking wastewater into central California drinking-water and farm-irrigation aquifers, the state found after the US Environmental Protection Agency ordered a review of possible contamination.

According to documents obtained by the Center for Biological Diversity, the California State Water Resources Board found that at least nine of the 11 hydraulic fracturing, or fracking, wastewater injection sites that were shut down in July upon suspicion of contamination were in fact riddled with toxic fluids used to unleash energy reserves deep underground. The aquifers, protected by state law and the federal Safe Water Drinking Act, supply quality water in a state currently suffering unprecedented drought. The documents also show that the Central Valley Water Board found high levels of toxic chemicals - including arsenic, thallium, and nitrates - in water-supply wells near the wastewater-disposal sites. Arsenic is a carcinogen that weakens the immune system, and thallium is a common component in rat poison.

"Arsenic and thallium are extremely dangerous chemicals," said Timothy Krantz, a professor of environmental studies at the University of Redlands, according to the Center for Biological Diversity. "The fact that high concentrations are showing up in multiple water wells close to wastewater injection sites raises major concerns about the health and safety of nearby residents."

The Center for Biological Diversity obtained a letter from the state Water Board to the US Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) that said the Central Valley Regional Water Board discovered the health violations. Following the July suspension of the 11 injection sites, the EPA ordered a review of aquifers in the area to be completed within 60 days.

The state Water Board also said that 19 more injection wells may have also contaminated sensitive, protected aquifers, while dozens more wells have been the source of wastewater dumped into aquifers of unknown quality.

Despite these damning findings, the extent of wastewater pollution is still undetermined, as the Central Valley Water Board has thus far only tested eight water wells of the more than 100 in the area, according to the documents. Half of those tested came up positive for containing an excessive amount of toxic chemicals.

To unleash oil or natural gas, fracking requires blasting large volumes of highly pressurized water, sand, and other chemicals into layers of rock. The contents of fracking fluid include chemicals that the energy industry and many government officials will not name, yet they insist the chemicals do not endanger human health, contradicting findings by scientists and environmentalists. Toxic fracking wastewater is then either stored in deep underground wells, disposed of in open pits for evaporation, sprayed into waste fields, or used over again.

Fracking has been linked to groundwater contamination, an uptick in earthquakes, exacerbation of drought conditions and a host of health concerns for humans and the local environment.

A recent study by the US Drought Monitor noted that 58 percent of California is experiencing "exceptional drought," which is the most serious category on the agency's five-level scale. Meanwhile, a fracking job can require as much as 140,000 to 150,000 gallons of water per day, water that then cannot be consumed or used in farming operations.

"Much more testing is needed to gauge the full extent of water pollution and the threat to public health. But Governor [Jerry] Brown should move quickly to halt fracking to ward off a surge in oil industry wastewater that California simply isn't prepared to dispose of safely."

BoulderDear Boulder County Commissioners,

I can see no benefit by having "fracking" wells in Boulder County. Why would we even consider this kind of activity in such a heavily populated area? In an area where people and animals enjoy their healthy "spaces"?

Really, is are there any true benefits to the "life" of this community made available through the activity of "fracking" for oil or gas?

Please, ask yourselves these questions, deeply and sincerely before you make the vote that can so impact all of our lives in Boulder County.

I sincerely hope, you will at least vote to extend the moratorium for another 3 years, but it would be even more farsighted to aim for a permanent one.

Thank you for your service!

Sincerely,

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

I join thousands upon thousands of Coloradoans who categorically do not believe that the chemicals currently in use for fracking are anything except extremely dangerous, toxic, and harmful to our water, our land, and every living thing.

We have seen the harmful impacts that fracking has on our neighboring communities: it is bad for health, lowers property values and contaminates air and water that we depend on to further life.

There are other states who have had fracking disasters and I do not want to add Colorado to the list. Nor do I want continued interference and misinformation from big oil. Big oil and big business seem to be driving the bus for these fracking projects. It is my hope that our legislature will see through their efforts and continue to say a big fat NO to fracking across the state as well as here in Boulder County.

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years.

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years.

I consider this to be an extremely serious matter. I am urgently and with the utmost concern I can express to you, requesting that the moratorium on fracking be extended. I have seen documentaries and other direct evidence that fracking is essentially a process that cannot be done safely to protect our ground water and our atmosphere from the leaking of dangerous and toxic chemicals and methane.

I will definitely move from Boulder County if fracking is ever done here.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

I am aware of the harmful and unacceptable impacts that fracking has had on many other communities, and I am very grateful for the moratorium that has thus far protected my neighborhood.

I am writing today because I am very concerned that the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Fracking structures are creepy, ugly and will ruin this beautiful place. Fracking is an unsafe practice that has no place in our community, near our children, pets or homes. I would consider leaving Boulder if fracking activity was to begin taking place near my home.

Please extend the moratorium or ban fracking all together.

Dear Commissioners Domenico, Gardner and Jones,

My wife and I both are angry and disappointed at the prospect that the "rights" of corporations to property may be elevated above the constitutional and--more important--inalienable rights of persons to life and liberty.

We do not believe that corporations need be deprived of their property. Rather, we believe that they must find ways of exploiting it that do not injure others.

Similarly, we believe that the money we have in a bank in Gunbarrel is ours; but we do not therefore claim a right to go to the bank at midnight with an explosive charge to extract it. Are corporations privileged over natural persons in this regard?

If they are not, then your constituents deserve a moratorium. Do not let the corporations come to us at midnight.

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

We have seen the harmful impacts that fracking has on our neighboring communities: it is bad for health, lowers property values and contaminates air and water.

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Sincerely,

Please do not let these oil companies run roughshod over the people of Boulder and Colorado. As you have seen from the protests all around the country, there is great concern about the dangers of fracking and the diminishing of property values. There are other options to explore. Boulder, CO 80302-5247

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

We have seen the harmful impacts that fracking has on our neighboring communities: it is bad for health, lowers property values and contaminates air and water.

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Carol Carbon

there are a number of 800 pound gorillas in the room. The worst of which is that fracturing the deep Stratas to get to the gas is releasing prehistoric radioactivity of gamma radiation with half-lives of millions of years. Two recent studies one from the University of Virginia and the other from Harvard cooperate this fact.

Second is the fact that these wells decrease from their initial production in 1 to 2 years to about a third. Meaning that the profits are illusory and the only thing that keeps the industry going are the current cheap interest rates.

Third is the fracking waste and the amount of water it takes. Billions of gallons of on reusable water are needed. There is no safe way to cleanse this waste and it is still completing all of the aquifers in the West.

We have seen the harmful impacts that fracking has on our neighboring communities: it is bad for health, lowers property values and contaminates air and water.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Dear County Commissioners,

I am writing in regards to the potential of fracking in Boulder county. I have 3 children under 3 and live in Gunbarrel. The thought that there might be fracking anywhere near our home that might cause harm to my children terrifies me. Please consider an extension to the moratorium on fracking for another 3 years so more research can be conducted on the potential affects that fracking will do to the environment and the residents in the area.

Thank you.

Protect our water. Don't give in to the fear that the oil and gas industry is pushing. Be a leader in not allowing oil and gas to push us around and sell us lies. Don't set us up for 5, 10, 20 years from now being sorry we allowed them to contaminate our environment. And we WILL be sorry. And YOU will be held to blame. There is no doubt in my mind. Boulder County is lucrative without fracking. We will continue to be so without fracking.

Dear Ms. Gardner,

Food. Water. Air.

As human beings, we have a right to clean soil for our food, clean water to nourish our cells, and clean air to breathe.

Fracking harms all three.

And there's no point to being energy-rich if we are all sick or dead.

The reports are in already:

the Front Range air quality is going downhill (see even the April Denver Post articles). My health is tumbling already from the increased pollution in Boulder/Denver since I moved to CO in 2011.

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the well-being of the people, animals, and earth, we need to extend the moratorium for three years.

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

I live in Boulder County within 3/4's of a mile of Weld County and we have watched the number fracking sites there go through the roof. With too little regulation, drilling companies are drilling as fast as they can before regulations catch up. They are doing this because the negatives of fracking are well known and data on the problems with fracking is increasing, so they know it's a race against time and they don't care about the negative effects as long as they can drill.

We **need** the moratorium for Boulder County extended so regulations can be put in place to address all the problems that are coming up from fracking.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Sincerely,

Mr. Phil Rogacki

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

Boulder is one of the most beautiful counties in Colorado, and in the U.S. The County's moratorium on fracking has allowed new information regarding the safety of hydraulic fracturing and other oil and gas production techniques, new air quality regulations have been issued, and new setback limits and groundwater monitoring imposed. Several injection disposal wells in Colorado recently had to be shut down because they were causing earthquakes. The court case in Longmont has not yet been heard by the Colorado Supreme Court, and the issue of whether and when a moratorium is a de facto ban has not yet been considered. Allowing drilling to proceed now would cause irresponsible levels of development as producers would race to drill wells to obtain grandfathered exemptions from new regulations or prohibitions. Please don't let that happen. Please protect Boulder County by extending the moratorium, at least until this issue is more settled.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Sincerely,

Ms. Katherine Toan

There are other ways to get clean energy. We do not need to rape and pillage the land. Fracking will change the face of our beautiful state. It has already marred the land around Greeley. Is this what you really want to do to Boulder County? Please think about the impact of your decision!

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

I own the minerals under my farm. But I do not control those on immediate neighbors. Our only domestic water supply is from well water. This makes us very vulnerable to pollution of our precious ground water from the uncaring and polluting practices of oil and gas companies on the other side of the fence.

We have seen the harmful impacts that fracking has on our neighboring communities, impacts on farm lands and their productivity. The Governor is obviously biased in favor of oil and gas development and has not protected the rights of surface owners. the concept that mineral rights are superior to surface rights is an outmoded legal framework that must be overturned.

The claims that fracking has been done for decades is only a half truth. What has changed in the technology, the chemicals involved, the pressures involved, and massive scale of this practice. It is being shown, finally, that these practices are polluting our air and water and are a major source of emissions of potent greenhouse gases. Those things must be brought under very tight control, and it appears that only local governments are willing to take on this responsibility. EPA is neutered by Congress, the Governor and the COGCC are in the lap of this industry and controlled by it. The CDPHE is lax in protecting our health and environment. Local governments must step in.

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years. And the county needs to get brave and challenge the pre-emptions of state government over local authorities so the county and cities can do what needs to be done to regulate these industrial practices.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

We have seen the harmful impacts that fracking has on our neighboring communities: it is bad for health, lowers property values and contaminates air and water.

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Sincerely,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years.

Furthermore, the amount of water required to successfully use the fracking method to extract gas is inordinate and not something our drought susceptible area can afford. Water is a precious commodity that is used in the fracking process and it cannot be restored or reused once used in fracking.

Please extend the ban of fracking in Boulder county.

Thank you.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

I am a long time unincorporated Boulder County resident. I have been trying to stay open to the idea that fracking can be done responsibly and safely. The more I educate myself on the matter, the more I see it is being done irresponsibly and in harmful ways. Seems like the age-old philosophy of maximizing profit without regard to the environment or the people who live here.

I strongly urge you to renew and extend the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County. The open space lands are a big reason I love living here and to turn them over to the Oil and Gas industry for their profit would be a severe mistake. Not to mention my concern for the health of my family and neighbors. We need to protect our precious water resources.

The frustration and concern I feel is overwhelming and you are our only hope. Please help protect the land I love and keep it safe for its inhabitants.

At least renew it long enough to continue to gather information about lands that currently are fracked so we can be sure it can be done without causing environmental and health issues.

Thank you.

Chris Garone

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Longmont city council voted unanimously to 'fight the good fight' and continue working with other local cities doing the same. It's costly to hire appropriate attorneys yet the whole community is behind this project and willing to do what it takes to stop the oil and gas companies from contaminating our water systems.

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

We have seen the harmful impacts that fracking has on our neighboring communities: it is a dirty inadequately regulated industry that uses and kills huge amounts of water, contaminates air and water with permanent impacts to health, and lowers property values. The air quality for Boulder is rated a "D" by the American Lung Association, and we do NOT need to make it worse!

Since the moratorium on fracking was set in order to evaluate the safety of this industry, there has been a growing body of evidence, both research and anecdotal, about the terrible impacts of fracking. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years. Please represent the common good for the people, and don't sell out to the powerful and wealthy oil and gas industry!

Ms. Deb Gardner

Boulder, CO 80302-5247

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

We have seen the harmful impacts that fracking has on our neighboring communities: it is bad for health, lowers property values and contaminates air and water.

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Sincerely,

Mr. jonathon montag

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

We have seen the harmful impacts that fracking has on our neighboring communities: it is bad for health, lowers property values and contaminates air and water.

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years.

Fracking uses vast quantities of water and the toxic solutions often contaminate ground water - and water is one resource that we absolutely cannot do without - a human being can only go seven days without water.

We already exist in a fragile balance between water needs and water resources here in Colorado. DO NOT LET THE GREED for oil and gas dollars push Boulder County off of its long range perspective, planning, and care for the environment! Be courageous and extend the moratorium. Our children's children will thank you!

The only outcome of extending the moratorium on fracking is that we will protect our air and water resources and encourage the development of alternative, renewable energy development.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Sincerely,

Ms. LAURIE LARSEN

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years.

The citizens of Boulder County have always valued clean air, water, access to open space, and maintaining a healthy lifestyle. It would be counterproductive now to open up our county to more pollution of our air and water, not to mention the wasting of water that cannot be returned to the water cycle.

When you and I buy water and take a shower in it, that water is eventually returned to the natural water cycle. We "rent" it, so to speak. When a gas company buys water to frack a gas well, that water is so polluted after the fact that it must be injected into the earth (meaning more pollution) so it will never be drunk or showered in again. With water being such a precious resource in our state, it seems truly foolhardy to allow private companies to buy large amounts of the community's water supply, and then waste it by using it only once and then dumping it.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

We have seen the harmful impacts that fracking has on our neighboring communities: it is bad for health, lowers property values and contaminates air and water.

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years.

Please extend the moratorium in Boulder County. We are just beginning to learn the results of fracking and the processes associated it and how harmful the are. Please protect the citizens of this area!

Dianna Osborn

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Sincerely,

Ms. Dianna Osborn

Please extend the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County. My neighborhood, Heatherwood, is a prospective site for fracking. I am extremely concerned what this will do to the quality of groundwater and the air in my neighborhood. I do not support this kind of extraction in my proverbial backyard.

Thanks

Dear Ms. Gardner,

I urge you to protect our drinking water, our clean air and our property by extending the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County.

We have seen the harmful impacts that fracking has on our neighboring communities: it is bad for health, lowers property values and contaminates air and water.

As you know, the current moratorium on fracking will expire in a few short months. In order to protect the things that make Boulder County great, we need to extend the moratorium for three years.

I urge you to protect Boulder County residents and the environment by extending the moratorium on fracking.

Sincerely,

Dear Commissioners,

20 Years ago when I relocated to Boulder, I did so because of clean air, clean water and beautiful landscapes. Since then I have accumulated small real estate investments that I care very much about. Lately, the onslaught of natural gas mining all over the state is concerning me very deeply. Unfortunately, oil and gas companies seem to own much of the land under our homes. Does this give oil and gas barons the right to destroy our counties beauty, our health and our homes safety and financial security? Any agreement that our homes, schools, and other community amenities are secondary to oil and gas production is criminal.

Over a decade ago when I first heard of "Frack" mining for natural gas, I thought what a great idea. Now, I am Horrified.

Yes, I want the Fracking moratorium extended. Better yet I want Fracking to be completely Banned in Boulder County. I care about my quality of life.

Boulder County Commissioners,

We are very concerned about having fracking sites all over our beautiful county. Fracking has proven to create large amounts of toxic gases in the air, trigger earth quakes and contaminate water supplies. Please protect our health and quality of living by doing whatever is in your power to prevent this industrial process from being near our homes, parks, schools and open space.

Dear Commissioners:

When you stop to consider how small an area the City of Longmont is, compared to the total square miles in the State of Colorado, it becomes immediately clear that this is not a fight about fracking per se, but rather: about the profitability of fracking. Why else would there be such a fuss? There are plenty of square miles that they can go frack outside the city, but it is simply cheaper and therefore more profitable to frack here. That's because right here in the city, they already have all the "frackastructure" needed. Stuff like: water, electricity, roads, rail etc.

So let's not be blinded by strawman arguments about "energy independence" or "fracking is safe" and the like, when any arguments other than the real motivation - 'it's cheaper to frack in your backyard' are completely disingenuous and (by the way) provably* untrue. And do I trust anyone that is so disingenuous to frack near my home and family? Absolutely not, and you shouldn't either.

So send these guys packing. Let them go frack in the rest of the state's 100,000 square miles and leave our 27 square miles alone.

Thank you very much from a concerned citizen that is tired of corporations trying to lie to him for their own profit,

Ira S. Faberman,
Longmont Colorado

*If fracking is about 'energy independence,' why was there a bill in the US House of Representatives, sponsored by Cory Gardner, that would allow a greater percentage of fracking products to be exported? I would want those products to be retained for our benefit. Wouldn't you? <http://thehill.com/policy/energy-environment/213287-rep-gardner-support-for-gas-export-bill-came-from-states-without>

* If fracking is so safe, why was the oil industry trying for so long to suppress the now recently published connection between fracking and seismic activity in southern Colorado? <http://news.nationalgeographic.com/news/energy/2014/05/140502-scientists-warn-of-quake-risk-from-fracking-operations/>

Dear Commissioners Domenico, Gardner and Jones,

One possible solution to the thorny fracking issue might be to only allow non-fracked wells in Boulder County and let the State ballot initiatives take care of the political fallout. The oil industry would be allowed to have its mineral rights access and the county residents would get their fracking moratorium.

Best regards,

Dear Commissioners Domenico, Gardner and Jones,

This petition (link below) asks the Obama administration to stop approving the voluminous export of gas to the world market. Those exports show that the oil and gas industry claim that "fracking will give us energy independence" is a manipulative lie.

This gas does not benefit the public, either in Boulder County or in the U.S. as a whole. Rather, we suffer the toxic emissions while the gas is sold at world prices, and at an increasing rate.

I hope that you will help protect Boulder County by signing the petition.

I also hope that you will extend the county's moratorium on fracking for another three years. We need time for more of the research to be done:

- research on air and water quality in the vicinity of fracked wells;
- research on endocrine disruption in people living within 20 miles of these wells;
- research on the relationship between horizontal drilling and earthquakes (induced seismicity)
- research on leakage from the cement casings of injection wells

I hope you noticed that the Rockefeller Foundation recently sold their stock in fossil fuel companies and are investing in renewable energy - partly to align with their principles, and partly because fossil fuels are no longer a good investment.

Do the right thing. Please. Extend the moratorium. (We know you want to.)

Greetings,

With studies defunded and stifled at the state level, and a CU study on health affects of fracking due in 2015, please consider extending the moratorium until fracking can be deemed safe.

The fact that the industry hired the same PR firm that the cigarette industry did to lie to the public about the negative affects of smoking should be a tip off that this is not a good industry, they are not doing good things to the land, and they do not care about the health of the people who live here.

Please extend the moratorium.

Thank you,
Josh

Dear Commissioners Domenico, Gardner and Jones,

Some little-publicized public-health consequences of fracking, described here, are water and air contamination, with massive water use, from the mining and processing of fracking sand.

In addition, the purpose of the sand is to hold the fracked fissures open so that the desired gas and oil can escape. After the commercially viable gas and oil are gone, unpredictable but significant volumes of benzene, toluene, radon and other toxic gases continue to escape through cracked well casings (see biologist and toxicologist Sandra Steingraber's writings for details). Deep-subterranean radon, of course, keeps coming in perpetuity.

After a brief spurt of profit for the companies, then, one result of fracking is a permanently irradiated landscape.

You likely are well aware of the 'global frackdown' coming on Oct. 11. Still, I'd like to suggest that it is yet another reflection of awareness of the dangers of the new form of fracking, and further support for an extension of our moratorium in Boulder County.

Commissioner Domenico, I also join the call for you to declare your intentions about this extension, before the November election.

Join Us for the Global Frackdown, Oct. 11

Dear Stewart,

This past Sunday was a watershed moment in the history of the climate movement as more than 400,000 people converged on New York City for the People's Climate March. But our work has just begun -- to convince our legislators and local officials that there's really been a shift in what Americans want, we've got to follow up.

On Oct. 11 people all over the world will again unite for the Global Frackdown -- a wide-ranging series of protests, marches and documentary screenings to put a stop to fracking, which threatens our communities with water contamination, air pollution and increased earthquake risk.

This coordinated day of grassroots activism -- with events hosted by more than 200 partner organizations from California to New York and all throughout America's heartland -- is a chance for us to push back against fossil fuel industries and visibly demand a renewable energy future.

Please join us at one of these events on Saturday, Oct. 11 to protect what we love and demand an immediate ban to fracking.

Dear County Commissioners Cindy Domenico, Deb Gardner and Elise Jones,

As a citizen of Boulder County, I am calling on you to extend the moratorium on fracking in Boulder County for an additional 3 years, until December 31st, 2017.

As representatives of the people of Boulder County, it is incumbent upon all three of you to extend the moratorium as per the will of the people of this community. You have a responsibility, per your oath of office, to uphold the Colorado Constitution, specifically Article II, sections 1, 2, 3, and 28, which define our right to defend our lives, our homes and our right to self governance.

Before I cast my vote for County Commissioner in the November election, it is imperative that I know if Cindy Domenico will defend these rights and prioritized the health, safety and welfare of myself and my fellow Boulder County neighbors. Fracking is the most imminent threat that Boulder County faces, and Ms. Domenico's stance on this issue is crucial to my vote. And so I charge you to announce the moratorium decision no later than October 14th, 2014, the date the County has scheduled for mailing out the ballots.

Thank you for your time.

 Rocky Mountain Chapter Oil and Gas Team
 RE: Potential future impacts of fracking in Boulder County

Dear Commissioners;

The Indian Peaks Group is awaiting with some anxiety your decision whether to extend the County's current fracking moratorium when it expires at the end of this year. Because we care deeply about the public health, air and water quality, and environmental protection of Boulder County, we are asking you to extend the moratorium for another two years or longer. One rationale for doing so is to wait for the full implementation of the COGCC's recently revised air quality regulations and their success in greatly reducing methane and ozone precursor emissions from fracking operations. Another might be to wait for the results of the appeal of the industry's fracking ban lawsuit against Longmont.

We realize that the legal status of local government fracking moratoria and bans is uncertain. Industry and State challenges might prevail and might require defense of the Boulder County moratorium in a higher court, as is the case with other Front Range cities. We encourage you to join ranks with our other Front Range communities, if necessary, to assure that Boulder County maximizes its chances for optimal protection once these cases are resolved, and to prevent new drilling in the interim.

The worst case scenario of a successful moratorium legal challenge prompts us to request that County staff, using the best data available to it, prepare and present to the public as soon as possible an estimate of how the fracking industry would expand in the County after the end of the moratorium. This estimate could include, among others:

- Where industry-controlled mineral rights are located, especially mineral rights under public open space lands, under other properties with high ecosystem values, or under split estate private lands in rural County subdivisions.
- Where frack pads that access the above identified mineral rights might be located, and the time order in which they might be developed
- What County or State roads in the County would be used to access frack pads, particularly during the well development phase when large quantities of water are being trucked to the fracking sites
- What sources and quantities of water for fracking operations might be involved and how produced water would be treated and/or disposed of.
- What emergency response planning and infrastructure is currently in place in anticipation of spills, drift, and runoff of toxic substances, explosions, fires, blowouts, collapses, seismic events, floods, road and bridge damage/closures, etc.
- What is the plan for air quality monitoring and the plan for notification of citizens if leaks occur
- What uncompensated costs resulting from fracking operation impacts would need to be borne by County taxpayers

It would be very helpful if all information requested above could be mapped and available to the public on the County's web site, including full disclosure of important and/or requested data which may be currently unavailable to County staff.

We are not asking for an advocacy document from the County, just the staff's professional best estimate based on whatever data they have available. It is our opinion that County residents, especially those living in municipalities, are not fully aware of how cherished rural, agricultural and open space lands, and heavily used transportation networks, are likely to be impacted. A County estimate would help enlighten us all.

Thanks for your consideration of this request.

Dear Commissioners Domenico, Gardner and Jones,

As Boulder County approaches the end of our moratorium on drilling applications on Jan. 1, here for your consideration is another recent study on the potential effects of fracking on groundwater and the health of your constituents.

As one who has taught university courses in human ecology and as a resident of Heatherwood in unincorporated Boulder County, let me note that studies of fracking toxins in air as well as in water are numerous (e.g., 10 September People near 'fracking' wells report health woes.).

I trust that you will extend the moratorium at least until the recommendations of Governor Hickenlooper's present commission have become law.

However, justice requires that the moratorium last longer than that: namely, until fracking has been shown safe for county residents.

Short-term profit for a few does not justify permanent damage to many.

Greetings Commissioners,

Thank you for taking time to examine this issue. I think we are seeing many places on board with managing and reducing exploitation such as fracking. A noble effort indeed. From my understanding well casings are an issue.

Relative to Patrick Murphy's inspections I suggest that the county or other should not have to be finding leaks for the operators, though the operators do respond politely. One measurable leak found by an inspector should be so expensive, it will just not ever happen again.

Spills, a sign of an oil drop from a company vehicle on the ground should be so costly to the crew of the operator that it will just not ever happen again. The earth is precious. A spill of a gallon of anything reportable should be so costly to the crew of the operator that, it will just not ever happen again.

Please get Empowered for Fines! Cameras, yes. Respect for the earth, yes.

Hello:

The attached research compendium is a fully referenced compilation of the significant body of scientific, medical and journalistic findings demonstrating risks and harms of fracking.

Extend the moratorium now, please.

To the Boulder County Commissioners,

Please extend the current moratorium on fracking. This procedure is still not proven safe, as much as Gov. Hickenlooper would want us all to believe, and I for one do not trust the effects on our health and our environment. We are still cleaning up other mistakes of the past. Let's not add another problem to our list.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Nancy DeVita

Hi:

Inside at 1:30 in Boulder County Court, the Colorado oil and gas pirates are requesting the judge over turn the Longmont fracking ban...outside, right now, the Flatirons are barely visible due to the Weld County frack pollution blowing in!

What are waiting for? Extend the moratorium!

Hi:

All the Oil and Gas industry paid-for science cannot expunge this reality from the legal landscape:
Fracking is not safe, nor healthy for air, water and living creatures:

<http://www.law360.com/articles/550238/texas-energy-co-can-t-duck-2-9m-fracking-nuisance-verdict>

Mineral Right holder's rights TRUMP Surf Dweller's rights to clean air, water, soil and the peaceful enjoyment of home. Talk about "takings" of that which all life depends upon....

Fracking=Lifestyle support

Clean air, water and soil (that which fracking destroys)=Life support

Sincerely,

Scott Smith

Hi:

In support of extending the current oil and gas hydrofracking moratorium, currently set to expire Jan 1, 2015....you really need to follow-through on the extension to protect the health, safety and welfare of the citizens, and keep our roads, pedestrians, bikers, commuters, animals, pets, pollinators and all other life safe from frack-truck destruction, I submit the following for your consideration:

Howdy:

Having attended recent commissioner meetings which dealt with the subject of fracking, and recall the commissioner remarks about how pleased you were to receive "links" and reports about the topic, I respectfully submit the following for your entertainment.

<http://youtu.be/huDaWDZPhkM>

This addresses the recent spill in neighboring Weld County that loosed around 8,000 gallons of crude oil into the Poudre River. Health. Safety. Welfare. Hmm.

Cheers,
