I specialize in trauma (I have trained and worked in community mental health and VA settings, working with combat veterans and survivors of various forms of violence). I have some capacity to offer mental health support/counseling to survivors of the King Soopers shooting or friends/family of victims who were killed at no charge.	Services offered: - 6 individual sessions at no charge (after which we can decide an appropriate course of treatment and affordable fee); - Must be 18 or older; - Offer is open to any survivors of the shooting, first responders involved in the shooting, or friends/family of victims who were killed; - I will likely only have space for 2 people, and will need to do an initial screening call with any interested parties to make sure it is an appropriate fit.

Yes	Not particularly	I am a Licensed Professional Counselor in Colorado as well as a Nationally Certified Counselor. I hold a Master of Arts degree in Counseling from Adam's State University. I apply a compassionate interpersonal style to therapy, and absolutely love helping individuals in their pursuit of fulfillment in life. I am mature and deeply committed to the profession. I use a Person-Centered approach in therapy, as well as evidence-based practices including Cognitive Behavior Therapy, Mindfulness, Meditation, and Solution Focused. I recognize that each client is unique and will respond differently to different forms of therapy.	I work with culturally diverse populations and never make judgments or assumptions. All clients are equal and welcome, and will be treated with dignity and respect. I am a Colorado native with a military background, and a member of the LDS faith. I have served in these communities for years.
